

JURORS DECLARE JOHN HENRY SANE AND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT REACHED EARLY SATURDAY EVENING AFTER THREE HOURS DELIBERATION

Attorneys for Defendant Entered Motion for a New Trial Which Will Be Argued Later—Punishment for Manslaughter Is an Indeterminate Sentence of from One Year to Life—Arguments Presented by Attorneys Prove of Interest to Vast Throng—Court's Instructions to Jurors Made Scope of Action Very Clear.

The jury which heard the evidence in the murder trial of John W. Henry returned their verdict at 6:55 o'clock Saturday evening declaring that when the defendant killed Charles Eard on the 27th of January, last, that he was sane and guilty of manslaughter. Under the law the penalty for the crime of manslaughter is imprisonment in the penitentiary for from one year to life.

The defendant will be sentenced to the penitentiary unless a new trial should be granted to remain there until discharged according to law. The matter of the length of the term will be a question for the board of pardons to decide and will depend largely on the conduct of the prisoner.

Motion for New Trial.
Immediately after A. A. McNeal, foreman of the jury had handed the verdict to the circuit clerk and it had been read, W. N. Hargrove asked that the jury be polled and each man then indicated that he had agreed to the finding announced. Mr. Hargrove then entered a motion for new trial and court was adjourned by Judge Jones until 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. At that time the question of the motion for a new trial will be considered and it is possible that a time for arguing the motion may be fixed.

On the other hand the question may not be conducted at this time as there are two other indictments pending against the defendant, one of which charges him with the murder of Evert Crain and the other with the murder of Howard Crain. It is understood that counsel for the defendant are desirous of bringing these trials to an early issue in the court and that the matter will be decided by Judge Jones as to when trials will be had. A continuance is also possible.

Status Not Finally Settled.
The situation is somewhat unusual as the fate of the defendant would still be uncertain even should a new trial be denied. Subsequent to such a denial Henry would be sentenced to the penitentiary to serve until discharged according to law, but at the same time, the finding in trials if had on the other indictments might nullify or affect the verdict in this case. If, for example, the defendant were not guilty of murder on one of the other charges the penalty might overshadow the one which would be fixed in the case just finished. On the other hand should the defendant in a subsequent trial be declared insane he would probably be committed to some institution for the treatment of mental diseases and this finding would take precedence over the one made Saturday. In other words the status of John Henry as related to the law has not yet been fully settled.

Court Room Crowded.
The announcement that the final arguments in the Henry case would be made Saturday was sufficient to fill the circuit court room to overflowing. Court convened at eight o'clock and immediately Judge Jones announced that the argument on behalf of the state would be opened by J. Marshall Miller. Mr. Miller was followed by William T. Wilson for the defense and the third speaker was John M. Butler in behalf of the state. Then Elmer E. Hargrove of Kansas City presented argument in behalf of the defendant and an hour's address in defense was made by William N. Hargrove. This concluded the speech making in behalf of John Henry and court adjourned for the noon recess. It was made known that Judge Layman would close the argument for the state in the afternoon and an hour and a half of time was allotted to him. Each one of the attorneys reviewed the testimony in the case to some extent and touched upon the salient features although naturally from varying view points. Judge Layman concluded his speech about 2:45 and after a short recess Judge Jones began the reading of his instructions to the jury. The instructions were unusually comprehensive and seemingly touched upon every phase of the case.

Various Verdicts Outlined.
In concluding the court outlined the various forms of verdicts which it would be possible for the jury to return and the jurors were instructed that in returning their verdict they were not to use the type written form included in the written instructions but to write out a form of their own. Under the instructions of the court the jury could return a verdict finding the defendant guilty of murder and fixing the penalty at death. Or they could return a verdict finding the defendant guilty of murder and fixing a penitentiary sentence. They could also return a verdict finding the defendant guilty of manslaughter and the sentence could be intermediate according to law. The forms of verdict outlined were in such form also as to express the opinion of the jury as to the sanity or insanity of the defendant at the time of the commission of the crime. The reading of the instructions consumed fully an hour and it was about four o'clock when the jury returned in charge of an officer.

Jurors Conferred Three Hours.
It was just a trifle less than three hours from the time that the instructions were given to the jurors and they returned into the court with the finding. The only attorneys present when the verdict was returned were T. F. Smith of the prosecution and William N. Hargrove of the defense. There were not many spectators in the court room although a goodly number of the relatives of the defendant who have been unfailingly and loyally at his side during the progress of the trial were there.

The announcement of the finding was received by the defendant without any special show of emotion and the same was true of the relatives. It is understood, however, that they are anxious that the motion for a new trial shall prevail and feel that eventually the jury will declare that John Henry is not guilty of the crime charged against him.

Argument By Counsel.
Summaries of the addresses made by counsel while finally arguing the case are presented below. No recent case in Morgan county courts has been followed with such interest as this. Both prosecution and defense have made an excellent showing of legal ability and the court procedure during the trial has been orderly and expeditious. At no time has Judge Jones permitted matters to lag and the attorneys too have manifested desire and willingness to work and concentrate their efforts on the case and bring it to a finality as speedily as possible. The facts have been largely responsible for the whole bearing of this important case the securing of a jury, the presentation of a vast amount of evidence, lengthy argumentation and the finding of a verdict all in five and one half days.

J. Marshall Miller Speaks.
"All week long this trial has been in progress. No pleasant task, no ordinary occasion brings you together. You sit here in response to the call of the state—to the duty of citizenship. You leave your farms and homes because enlightened society has found no better way by which the rights of humanity may be protected and the wrongs of evil doers punished. Jury trial is the highest expression of modern jurisprudence for the protection and safeguarding of the rights of society and of upholding of the rights of society and of upholding the majesty and worth of human law."

The Question at Issue.
"There are but two questions to answer, was this man guilty or murderer or not, and was he insane or sane at the time the crime was committed. Many allegations in the indictment are not necessary for you to consider. The question is did John Henry murder and kill Charles Eard last January. Malice does not mean a long standing enmity. It embraces a state of mind when a man determines to do a certain act and may be of long or short duration. Murder is the killing of a fellow creature with malice declared or implied. (The legal definition of murder was read.) If you find the defendant guilty, you are to fix the penalty for the crime. (The attorney then read a portion of the language of the indictment, which he said was the precise charge on which the defendant was being tried.) The home of Charles Eard is south of Woodson and the family was seated at the evening meal. The wife of the defendant comes in and takes a seat at the table. Soon a footfall is heard on the porch and the defendant opens the door and gun in hand, with oath demands that his wife return home. The wife refuses to go and both Mr. and Mrs. Eard plead with the visitor to go with her. The angry man fires a shot which puts out the light. Then Mrs. Eard, baby in arm, rushed to the other room to see if her child had been smothered by the smoke. Then another shot is heard and when Mrs. Eard returns to the dining room, lamp in hand, she finds the bleeding body of her husband upon the floor. She goes to the telephone to call for help and the defendant jerks the receiver and says, 'We do not want any help here.' Then the man disappears. Let us remember the facts which led up to this event:

"The defendant that day had been in Woodson and there was given a drink of whiskey and in following that craving we find that he came to Jacksonville and that subsequent to his return he said that a doctor friend had given him another drink, and there was the testimony that this man expressed a regret that he had not gone on to Bloomington when he rode on a through freight which did not really stop at Jacksonville for in Bloomington he would have had no difficulty in securing the liquor he desired. After his return to Woodson on that fateful afternoon he walked across the street and conversed with various people in a rational way. He met his son and talked about the delivery of corn and then rode to his home late in the afternoon and helped with the evening chores, then we find him seated in the family home and a few minutes later gun in hand, thrusting open the door at the home of his neighbor Charles Eard where his wife had gone before him. Then following the awful happening in that Eard home, following the homicide this man goes to a cheap hotel in St. Louis where he says he remained 4 days, here he was in a crowded lodging house according to his own story in a remote part of a great city. He did not go from his room to the street for three days and was completely buried from public view.

Escape Planned Cleverly.
"No escape from the scene of the crime could have been more cleverly planned. Then according to his own story after a regaining of consciousness he went down stairs and tried to phone his brother in East St. Louis, then he read the story of the Woodson tragedy in a St. Louis paper then it came to him that he was the man. He made purchases of clothing and a little afterward boarded a street car and went to the little town of Venice whence under the cover of the night, riding upon the blind baggage or within the cab of the engine he returned to his home. He arrived there during a blustering snow storm. Only the members of this man's family who were gathered at that time at the home can add the details to this story which are lacking. You can see the difficulty which confronted the prosecution of putting upon the daughter of this defendant and his relative Mr. Megginson, to seek from them the fuller details of what happened in that home a few minutes before the happening of the tragedy and during the time immediately after the return of this defendant to his home. Not to add details which might throw discredit upon the theory of the defense or to add to the difficulty of giving credence to the facts relating to the tragedy as maintained by the defense."

"So the prosecution in such a case must proceed under and hampered by certain difficulties in getting at all of the facts and details which the case includes. When the defendant has returned to his home the sheriff is notified and the man is brought to the county jail and preparation is made for his trial. The best of legal talent is secured to defend him from the standpoint of the law and the best of medical talent to aid in the theory of insanity. You have heard the testimony of the experts who took the stand in the behalf of the defense and you have heard the experts who answered questions propounded by the prosecution. There has been an effort to throw full light upon the mental condition of John W. Henry on the night that he shot and killed Charles Eard. Let us consider the night of the killing. John W. Henry showed perspective faculties and memory when he went to the Eard home armed with a double barreled shot gun pushed open the kitchen door and with oaths pointed the gun toward his wife and upbraided her for the conduct which he said that he did not approve. He charged her with devoting too much time to the Ladies Aid society and with neglecting her family and when his friend Charles Eard begged him to put up his gun the reply was sit down or I'll shoot you for you have been upbraiding her."

"What about the threat that John W. Henry made when he said that if anybody goes to the phone I will shoot? What about the mental ability displayed when John W. Henry seized the telephone receiver from Mrs. Eard's hand and said we do not want anybody here and who in reply to her statement that you have killed my husband, said I don't care if I have and then asked where his wife was, calling her by name. What about John W. Henry going home and getting shells and paper and telling his children goodbye? If he was a maniac and insane why did he escape so skillfully? Why did we

ARE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH DISAPPEARANCE OF THEIR CHILD

Search in Winters Home Discloses Clothing, Said to Belong to Missing Girl, Sealed Up in Wall—Workmen Are Digging Up Cellar and Grounds in Hope of Finding Body.

NEW CASTLE, Ind., May 30.—Dr. W. A. Winters and his wife, Byrd Winters were arrested here today in connection with the disappearance of their child, Katherine Winters on March 20th, 1913.

With W. H. Cooper, a boarder at their home, they were held for six hours on the technical charge of "conspiracy to commit a felony," before being released on $10,000 bond. Cooper is still in jail in default of a $6,000 bond. The arrests came after a search of the Winters home last night in which it was declared that a red skirt, a red sweater and a hair ribbon belonging to the missing nine year old girl were found sealed up in a wall in the cellar. Workmen under the direction of the chief of police and the mayor are now digging up the entire cellar and the grounds surrounding the house in the hope of finding the body of the child. Cooper, who was arrested last night after the search of the house denied all knowledge of the child's disappearance and asserted that he would have no trouble in clearing himself of the charge placed against him.

The Winters were arrested when they returned today from Terre Haute where they had been in connection with the display of moving pictures portraying the alleged kidnapping of their child.

Winters was indignant at his arrest and charged his present predicament to Mayor Watkins with whom he has not been on friendly terms. The principal instigator of the arrests is a detective, Robert A. Abell, who arrived here several weeks ago at the solicitation of several business men and the mayor.

The strange turn in the events in the case with the girl ends a nation wide hunt that began more than a year ago when the child dropped out of sight as completely as though the earth had swallowed her. Dr. Winters, a member of many lodges and societies, had no difficulty in raising a fund of $2,000 as a reward for the finding of the girl. Police and private detectives took up the search and money was offered the Winters by hundreds of sympathizers to prosecute the hunt. Cynic hands were traded across Indiana and Illinois in the belief that the girl had been kidnapped and Dr. Winters visited scores of cities in an effort to find trace of the child. During the search the father hinted that the girl's relatives might know more of the case than they cared to admit but insisted that the child was alive. Mrs. Winters insisted that she believed the girl was dead.

IOWA COAL OPERATORS AND MINERS AGREE ON CONTRACT

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 30.—The joint conference of the coal miners and operators of Iowa agreed today on a contract covering wage scales and working conditions for the next two years.

There is no change in tonnage prices though there are adjustments of a number of inequalities as affecting both miners and operators. The entire agreement will now be submitted to the miners and operators. Its approval practically is assured as it carries the unanimous approval of the scale committee of the miner's organization. General scales are fixed for the operation of mine machines in all districts. A scale of $1.25 a day is fixed for boy slate pickers. Machine runners are to receive 8 cents a ton, shovellers 8 cents a ton, helpers 6 1-2 cents a ton, and loaders .76 1-2 cents a ton.

Light Rainfall For May.
Decatur, Ill., May 30.—Unless heavy rain falls Sunday, May, 1914 will go as the driest May in the last 21 years in this city. Only .53 of an inch of rain fell during the month according to government weather bureau reports.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT MEMORIAL EXERCISES

ADDRESSES THROGS THAT GATHER AT ARLINGTON NAT'L CEMETERY

Speaker Clark and Senator Reed Smoot of Utah Also Speak—Dr. J. K. Gleeson Presents President to the Audience.

Washington, May 30.—President Wilson and Speaker Clark both delivered addresses at the Memorial Day services under the auspices of the G. O. P. in Arlington National cemetery today.

The president had not expected to participate but, feeling that a false construction had been placed upon his declaration decided today to attend and speak. Before the president's decision had been communicated to those in charge they had invited Speaker Clark to make the address of the day and he had come from Atlantic City for this purpose.

President Wilson was applauded as he entered the vine-clad amphitheater in which the exercises were held and again when Dr. J. K. Gleeson, the commander of the department of the Potomac Grand Army of the Republic, presented him to the great audience, made up chiefly of members of patriotic societies who carried their flags and wore the insignia of their orders.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, also spoke. Hilary A. Herbert, former secretary of the navy and many prominent confederates were seated on the speaker's platform.

MISS NAOMI DAVIS WINNER IN WESLEY MATHERS CONTEST

Second Rank Awarded to Miss Esse Summers—Program Was Well Attended and Excellent Throughout—Five Students Participated.

Miss Naomi Davis of Atkinson, Kansas, was the winner of the Wesley Mathers Contest in a declamation held at the Woman's College Saturday evening, in Music hall. She spoke "The Incident of the Candle," from Les Miserables, by Victor Hugo. Miss Esse Summers of Christopher, Ill., the winner of the second place, gave "The Wanderer" by Margaret Houston. There were five participants in the contest and the entire program displayed a high degree of training and fine appreciation of the arts of expression. Just before the announcement of the judges' decision, Miss Mary Shastid sang "Off Have I Seen." The entertainment was well attended and the manner with which it was received speaks well for the Department of Expression of the college.

CLARENCE M. STARK FOUND DEAD IN BED

Wealthy Citizen of Louisiana, Mo., Against Whom a Writ of Habeas Corpus Was Denied Passes Away at Maplewood Sanatorium.

Clarence M. Stark was found dead in his bed at Maplewood sanatorium Saturday night at 6 o'clock by one of the nurses. He had been at the sanatorium only a few days.

Coroner Wright was notified of his death and empanelled the following jury: Messrs. R. B. Reynolds, R. C. Reynolds, C. A. Johnson, H. M. Lane, Dr. George Dismore and Edward G. Saye. The inquest will be held this morning at 10 o'clock in the Reynolds undertaking parlors where the remains were taken.

Mr. Stark was reputed one of the wealthy citizens of Louisiana, Mo., and was one of the founders of the Stark Bros. nursery and Orchards company, which it is said has grown to a million dollar concern. Mr. Stark was brought to Maplewood May 22 for treatment.

Habeas corpus proceedings were begun last Monday for his release and the hearing came up before Judge Jones. His wife, Mrs. Lillie C. Stark, was in the city at the time of the hearing and she opposed the granting of the writ. The decision in Mr. Stark's case was not much one of unsound mind as it was a question of jurisdiction.

Mr. Stark is 58 years of age. His relatives were notified of his death and will be here today and accompany the remains home after the inquest. Mr. Stark was a member of the Masonic lodge.

CAPTAIN KENDALL OF EMPRESS OF IRELAND TELLS OF DISASTER DECLARES HE HAD TAKEN ALL POSSIBLE PRECAUTIONS

States That Storstad Answered His Signals but That He Received No Reply When He Shouted for the Collier to Stand by—Marine Engineer at Inquest, Gives Opinion That Probably Everyone Would Have Been Saved Had the Steamer Kept Her Bow in the Ireland's Side—Will Try and Secure Evidence of Storstad's Captain and Crew.

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 30.—While final tabulations of the casualties in the sinking of the ill-fated Steamer Empress of Ireland were being made today, showing that 403 of her passengers and crew had been rescued and 964 had perished, Captain Henry George Kendall of the liner was telling his story of the disaster at an inquiry conducted by Coroner Pinaud here. Captain Kendall in substance declared that he had taken all possible precautions against a collision. His ship had been stopped, he gave the requisite signals when the Danish Collier Storstad, which dealt the blow which sent the Empress to the bottom, was still two miles away, but the collier had kept on through the fog which settled down soon after the two vessels sighted each other and had rammed the Empress of Ireland while the latter was virtually motionless. Then, despite his plea to the master of the collier that he keep his engines full speed ahead to keep the hole in the Empress's side plugged with the Storstad's bow, said Captain Kendall, the Danish vessel backed away, the water rushed in and the Empress sank.

Aids in Saving Drowning People.
Captain Kendall, who stuck to the bridge of his ship to the last and after being picked up by a life boat aided in saving a boat load of drowning persons from the wreck, took up his story of the disaster from the point at which the Empress of Ireland, bound from Quebec for Liverpool had dropped her pilot Thursday night at Father Point near which the disaster of yesterday morning occurred.

"We then proceeded full speed," continued Captain Kendall. "After passing Rock Point gas buoy I sighted the Steamer Storstad, it then being clear. The Storstad was then about one point, twelve degrees on my starboard bow. At that time I saw a slight fog bank coming gradually from the land and knew it was going to pass between the Storstad and myself. The Storstad was about two miles away at that time. Then the fog came and the Storstad's lights disappeared. I rang full speed astern on my engines and stopped my ship."

"At the same time I blew three short blasts on the steamer's whistle, meaning 'I am going full speed astern.' The Storstad answered with the whistle, giving me on prolonged blast."

Storstad Answers Signal.
"I then looked over the side of my ship into the water and I saw my ship was stopped. I stopped my engines and blew two long blasts meaning 'my ship was under way but stopped and has no way upon her.' He answered me again with one prolonged blast. The sound was then about four points upon my starboard bow."

"It was still foggy. I looked out to where the sound came from. About two minutes afterwards I saw his red and green lights. He would then be about one ship's length away from me. I shouted to him through the megaphone to go full speed astern, as I saw the danger of collision was inevitable; at the same time with my helm hard a port, with the object of avoiding if possible, the shock. Almost at the same time he came right in and cut me down in a line between the funnels."

"I shouted to the Storstad to keep full speed ahead to fill the hole he had made. He then backed away. The ship began to fill and listed over rapidly. When he struck me, I had stopped my engines. I then rang full speed ahead again, when I saw the danger was so great, with the object of running her on shore to save passengers and ship. Almost immediately the engines stopped, the ship listing and going over all the time, starboard."

Is Taken Down With Suction.
"I had, in the meantime given orders to get the life boats launched. I rushed along the starboard side of the boat deck and threw all the gripes out of Numbers 1, 3, 5 and 7 boats, then I went back to the bridge again, where I saw the chief officer rushing along to the bridge. I told him to tell the wireless operator at once to send out distress signals. He told me this had been done. I said: 'Get the boats out as quickly as possible.' That was the last I saw of the chief officer. Then, in about three to five minutes after that the ship turned over and foundered. I was shot into the sea myself from the bridge and taken down with the suction. The next thing I remember was seeing a piece of grating. How long I was on it, I do not know, but I heard some men shout from a life boat 'there is the captain; let us save him.'"

"They got to me and pulled me in the boat. The boat already had about thirty people in it. I did my best with the people in the boat to assist in saving others. We pulled around and picked up twenty or twenty-five more in the boat and also put about ten around the side in the water with ropes around their wrists, hanging on."

"Seeing that we could not possibly save anymore, we pulled to the Storstad, which was then about a mile and a half away. I then got all the people put on board the Storstad and then left her with six of the crew and went back and tried to save more. When we got there everybody had gone. We searched around and could not see anybody alive, so then we returned to the Storstad."

"What was the cause of the collision?" asked the coroner. "The Storstad running into the Empress of Ireland, which was stopped," answered Kendall.

Asks Storstad to Stand Fast.
Captain Kendall, in answer to a question by a juror, said that when he shouted to the Storstad's captain to stand fast he received no answer. It was impossible for him not to have been heard, he added. "I shouted five times," he also shouted "keep ahead," said Captain Kendall, "and if he did not hear that he should have done it as a seaman should have known that."

"There was no panic among the passengers or crew. Everybody behaved splendidly. About four boats were launched; these were the four of which I loosened the gripes. As the ship sank and the water rose these boats floated away. The people who were saved were saved by the Empress's boats and by the wreckage."

"The Storstad had three of four of his boats and he pulled around and took people off the wreckage. He did not get many. I passed a couple of his boats and he only had three people on them."

Marine Engineer Testifies.
James Rankin, a passenger from Vancouver, B. C., and a marine engineer, said:

"I was aroused by the noise and ran on. There was a big pitch to the deck. I cannot really tell you how the accident occurred."

"I think that if the Collier had kept her bow in the hole she had made in the Ireland's side, she would have been able to make the shore and probably have saved everyone."

"The behavior of the officers on the Empress was beyond all praise. They did everything they could. The engineers remained below until they could get no more steam and the lights went out."

Adjourn For One Week.
After a moments deliberation by the jury it was decided to adjourn the inquest for one week. In the meantime the coroner will consult with the district attorney to determine what may be done toward securing the evidence of the captain and crew of the Storstad, which arrived at Quebec today and proceeded to Montreal to land her cargo.

During the day the coroner gave an order for the removal of all the bodies that had been brought ashore. Relatives who had identified bodies were allowed to remove them and the others were taken to Quebec.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the Canadian government steamer Lady Grey, with ensigns half-masted, left here for Quebec, bearing 176 bodies in coffins today. No other bodies have been found and it is believed that the greater number of those lost were imprisoned inside the hull of the Empress.

not find him afterwards wandering about the neighborhood, muttering out imprecation about his enemies and seeking to kill them? As I said at my own breakfast table this morning and tried to express a word of thankfulness to the Heavenly Father for my little family circle the scene at Charles Ezard's home on that fearful night came to me as never before and I will confess to you that a lump came into my throat which choked me from speaking. The deep pathos of that scene and of that tragedy I say came to me with a force hitherto unknown to me although I have in recent days gone over again and again the details of the tragedy.

"When I think of this little family in the peace and happiness of their home—the father seated at the head of the table, his wife and children about him and a neighbor woman showing their hospitality—when I think of the invasion of peace of that home—the appearance of that angry man bringing terror and alarm to that quiet household, armed with a shotgun, and with profanity threatening his wife, and the man who was the protector of that home—when I think of his being shot down when he is called upon for help—when I think that the affections of that wife and children will never again respond to the touch of a vanished hand nor to the sound of a voice that is stilled, my heartches and words fail me. The blood of Charles Ezard cries from the threshold of that home to be avenged.

"Are you men of families, are you God fearing and law respecting citizens? Will you be diverted from peal, or by skillfully arranged excuse."

Mr. Wilson Opens the Defense.

The first attorney to speak in behalf of the defense was W. T. Wilson who spoke in substance partially as follows:

"You gentlemen of the jury are to judge the facts from the evidence and the testimony. You must bear in mind that you must reach your verdict not merely from the evidence as related to the few minutes or hours surrounding the time when the tragedy transpired but you must give some heed also to this man's life record, and to his history and to the circumstances which preceded the event of January 27. You must consider the relations which existed between the defendant and the man who was killed. These facts of history and circumstance and of relationship between the man charged with the crime and the man who was killed are to be taken into consideration in settling the great question of mental responsibility which is the issue in this case. Many and competent witnesses have testified to this man's good reputation prior to January 27th last and you have seen from the evidence that the relation existing between John Henry and Charles Ezard were the most cordial character. They lived together in peace and friendship. They were more than mere neighbors for they had been raised together. They exchanged work at busy times and owned some tools together and there has not been the slightest evidence of any feeling of malice in the heart of this defendant toward his long time friend.

Some Life Facts.

"You must give some attention also to the record of insanity in this man's family history, you can not look into any man's mind and see exactly what is there but you can show from the family history the possible taint of mental disturbance. Dr. Norbury has testified fully with reference to this fact and you have been given the details both as a aunt and a uncle of this man's evidenced. The records show too that for months prior to this happening that John W. Henry had been worried by the unfavorable season and by other business facts. That he was depressed in spirit and that he became sleepless and emaciated. The records show that there was a loss of appetite and of memory and you cannot ignore the facts of those recorded headaches. The prosecution would have you sweep away all these important details, all this weighty evidence as having no bearing upon your finding, and would have you heap punishment upon this man without considering these facts in their relation to his mental responsibility. Here is a man who lived a good and useful life of 42 years and then in that life there comes an act just as foreign to its record and character as anything could possibly be.

A Convulsion in Conduct.

"In the light of the past of this man's life how can we explain this act? Will you harmonize the record of his industrious, peaceful, law abiding years with this convulsion? There are convulsions in nature which we pass over without investigation and consider only the years that have preceded but when there comes a convulsion of the mind the state comes in to make inquiry. I ask you is there any justice in ignoring the facts of this man's life and seeking to judge him only by the few minutes of his fateful night. The state has come before you with this indictment returned by the grand jury on May 18th and the state must prove the facts therein alleged in order to make good their case. The law provides that in a commission of crime that before there is a conviction that deliberation and malice and a wrongful intent must be proven. Where had any hatred, or any malice or any motive for this crime been shown from the evidence? On the contrary here is a record of this man's life. Here are the facts as to the possibilities of hereditary taint of insanity; here are the facts concerning the cordial relations of this man and his neighbor.

"The consideration of all these things does away with the thought of hatred or malice. Where prior to the very night of this occurrence was there any threat against this wife or against the friend who lost his life on the night in question? In considering your verdict I ask you to leave out the suggestion made by the prosecution of a mere duty to the state and to consider only the facts as shown by the evidence. We have brought before the physicians who told you of the condition of this man when they first examined him on Feb. 10th, they found this man's pulse 42 when the normal is 70; they found anemic conditions and improper blood pressure. When machinery breaks down and there is a weakening of the parts making up the whole anything may happen and so when the human machinery breaks or is insufficient happenings other than those normal may be expected. This defendant under the law must be presumed to be innocent and if there is a reasonable doubt in your mind as to his sanity at the time of the killing of Charles Ezard you must find him not guilty of the crime charged. If you find lack of malice and forethought in the commission of the act and find no criminal intent then you can not declare this defendant guilty of murder. You must not be influenced either by any prejudice there may be against the plea of temporary insanity. Again I ask you to keep in mind the facts of sleeplessness, the loss of weight, the worried condition, the insane hereditary facts, the details of the trip to St. Louis and the other testimony which in the light of reason throw in question this man's mental responsibility.

Must Consider Life History.

"The physicians who testified for the state bear in mind had not examined the defendant, and gave no consideration whatever to his life history, or to that of his family. I submit that it is not fair or just to pass opinion upon this man's acts at one specific moment without giving any thought to the years that are gone before him to the fact of his family connection. I am asking you to consider all of these things as they have come to me, as I have studied all of the events of this defendant's record. No doubt the attorneys for the prosecution will point you to the sorrowing condition of the home of which was bereft of husband and father on the night of this tragedy; on the other hand has not John W. Henry lost more. If the woman who sits at his side is more than the widow of John Henry, has she not lost more and has his children not lost more for the happening of that night will result in suffering for them as long as life shall last. Look at the events preceding this occurrence and at the time of the occurrence itself and then measure the responsibility of John W. Henry, the wife grappled with the husband and the gun was discharged and discharged again. Was there malice or intent there? Has the state shown that John W. Henry not know what premeditation and malice mean. The state has undertaken to prove a serious charge and the law lays upon them that they must prove the facts beyond a reasonable doubt before a verdict of guilty can be returned. Do not let me beg of you, overlook in this consideration of malice those friendly relations which existed between John W. Henry and Charles Ezard through life and according to the evidence up until the very time of this happening. Do not overlook the pallor of countenance and the emaciated condition to which evidence has been forthcoming. The state would have you find John Henry guilty because the evidence shows that he had a half of drink of whiskey on Jan. 27th and because Mr. Bradley testified and the defendant told him that a doctor friend had given him a drink of whiskey. Would you consider simply these things and ignore all the previous facts relating to this man's mental and physical condition? I urge you simply to consider all the evidence and testimony which has been brought to your attention and then to do as justice indicates and you would expect to be done by under like circumstances.

Mr. Butler's Argument.

John M. Butler was the next speaker in behalf of the prosecution. He said in part as follows: "The first proposition which it seems to me as jurors you are to settle is, was a crime committed upon January 27th. The evidence shows that on that night John W. Henry shoved open the door of the dining room of the home of Charles Ezard; that he was armed with a double-barrelled shotgun; that he pointed the gun at his wife; used an oath in addressing her and threatened to shoot her if she did not go home with him. There was further conversation and the gun was discharged and the light went out. A little later there was another shot and Charles Ezard lay dying upon the floor. The state does not claim that there had been any trouble between John W. Henry and Charles Ezard but on the other hand admits that their relations had been most friendly. But who had the gun on that fateful night? The evidence shows that the gun was in the hands of John Henry when he shoved open the door. When Mrs. Henry called to Charles Ezard to help her, Henry said: 'Sit still or I'll shoot you, for you have been upholding her.' A shot was fired and the light went out. A moment later and Mrs. Henry called, 'Charley, come and help me take away the gun.'

"Instantly there was another shot fired. Who had the gun, John W. Henry did, for a moment later with a weapon in his hands he was in the bed room with one hand tearing the telephone receiver from Mrs. Ezard's hand and telling her that no one was wanted there and he didn't care if he had killed her husband. You might call it mechanical or an accident that the gun was discharged without intent but it was not so legally. John W. Henry went to that house with murder in his heart; he was looking for his wife; he pointed the gun at her and he threatened to kill; The fact that some one else was killed does not relieve him of the charge of committing a murder with intent. The sole question at issue is whether or not he knew he was doing right or wrong; whether or not he had control of his will. The defense has argued that we do not consider the man's history in relation to his mental state. They have given testimony as to his uncle, a Mr. Ferguson, as a ground for the theory of hereditary insanity. The evidence shows that this man was not insane, but that he simply had an undeveloped mind. They have pointed to the life story of Nancy Barbour an aunt of the defendant as indicating hereditary insanity and yet the record when she was committed to the insane hospital indicated that her insanity resulted from puerperal fever following the birth of her second child. It is testified too that the defendant was worried, and that he was forgetful and that he passed sleepless nights. Every man who conducts business operations of any size has times to worry. When did those sleepless nights occur; not last October or last December but in the hot days of summer when many a man was sleepless and could not rest. The defense has referred to the fact that this defendant suffered a bump on the head, but I noticed that they themselves did not give sufficient force to this incident to have it referred to by their own physicians. If this bump or blow had amounted to anything it would have caused an inflammation.

Says Defendant Could Reason.

"Dr. Norbury and Dr. Dollar stated what they had found on physical examination and Dr. Norbury referred this man's mental state as a condition of constitutional inferiority. These physicians framed the hypothetical questions which were asked of them and they included that term of constitutional inferiority so that it would accord with others facts set forth in the question. The evidence as presented by the state shows that this man on the night of this crime was able to carry on a conversation. He did so at the Ezard house. We was able to carry on an argument; he realized that he had done something wrong; and that he must escape. How could a man who was insane reason that he had done wrong and then after committing a wrong hurry to his own home and kiss his children good bye put shells in his pocket and then make good his escape. He went to St. Louis and went to a hotel and gave the name of Brown. The facts all tend to show that he realized what he had done. According to the doctors, all men are more or less insane but according to the legal rule insanity as an excuse for crime must present with it an uncontrollable impulse, an impulse which overrides reason and judgment and will. (The attorney then read a section from the law on this point and another court

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Caroline Ornellos, wife of Antonio Ornellos, passed away at 2:30 Saturday morning at her home, 905 Doolin avenue, after several months of illness. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scott, and was born in Jacksonville, November 5, 1851. She was married to Antonio Ornellos April 24, 1873, and was the mother of eleven children, three of whom preceded her in death. Those surviving are: Edward, Arthur, James, Walter, Mrs. Fred Goes, Mrs. Fred De Prates, all of this city; Mrs. Russell Garner of Chicago; Mrs. Charles Kins, of Evanston, one sister, Mrs. John Day, and three brothers, James, Henry and Joseph Scott, of this city; also two grandchildren, Edwin Alvin Goes and Thelma Ruth Kins. She was a true devoted wife and mother, not only to her children, but to her sister and brothers, who were left without a mother when very young. She was a good christian woman and a member of the Northminster church. During all her illness she was patient and cheerful till the end and asked our dear Lord to open the gates that she might enter her home. There is a vacant place in our home which never can be filled.

Funeral services will be held at three o'clock Monday afternoon at the residence in charge of Rev. W. E. Spoons. Burial will take place at Jacksonville cemetery.

BUYS NEW CAR.

William T. Capps has purchased a handsome new Hudson six cylinder, six passenger automobile from William Newman.

WILL SPEAK TO OLD PEOPLE.

The Rev. Ira Smith, pastor of the Christian church at Franklin, will give an address this afternoon at 2:30 at the Old People's home. John Hitchens of Litterberry will lead the singing.

ZELL'S GROCERY

Henry's acts indicated a motive, yet there was not one bit of evidence to sustain that contention.

"The hypothetical question which the State propounded to its experts did of take into consideration any facts as to physical condition or raise any question of motive. It gave no consideration to health conditions or facts relating to insomnia. You might just as reasonably expect to grow corn, leaving the consideration of the soil and the sunshine. One of the most certain signs of disease is insomnia. There is a rebellion of nature and cases of insomnia may go on and on until at periods the mind becomes a blank. They want you to believe that this man was intoxicated although the evidence does not so indicate. It is true that he took a half a drink of whiskey, a mere swallow, and that that drink was taken at one o'clock in the afternoon, and yet the evidence indicates that there was not the slightest sign of intoxication. The fact that this man who was not addicted to the use of intoxicant had something in him which was craving and calling for something he knew not what indicated the disorder which reigned within his mind.

"We find this man on the day of the homicide doing the ordinary things of life, he had a small debt at the office of the doctor in Jacksonville, and he went and paid it; he bought household goods and had them shipped to his home; and went to the elevator and arranged for the payment of corn he had purchased on the following morning. He started to climb into a wagon to ride home with his son when attention was called to the fact that he had ridden a pony to the station. He rode past his son on the roadway toward home without speaking. He put his horse in the barn and then passed through the kitchen of the house without speaking to his wife or children who were there. He sat by the stove in the living room, and when his daughter called him to supper he made no reply. He was seated with his head resting in his hands. The noise from the kitchen disturbed him and he arose to shut the door to keep from hearing the laughter of his children and I probably that of his wife. At that moment the germs which had been at work in his mind developed to the full; and what happened in his mental state can only be known from the act, which came in the hours afterward.

Difficulties of Defense.

"The State has said that their case is hampered by the fact that on the near relatives reluctant to testify can shed full light upon the events of that night. But I want you to remember how the defense is bedeviled about with difficulties from the fact that the law prevents the wife of John W. Henry from taking the stand in this case. She knows more about the happenings and events of that night of January 27th, than does any other living being. And then the defense is bedeviled about from the fact that the mind about from who is charged with the crime was clouded on that very night. An alienist of such reputation as Dr. Norbury would not take the stand and tell you other than the facts as based upon the history of medical science. This was a form of monomania which this man had, when the period or state of fugue arrives there comes with it a desire to get away. There is a desire to get away from something, without realization of what that something may be. A desire to flee comes too from mere animal instinct. The dog that slays the sheep does not lie down by the carcass but flees away. That John W. Henry gave the name of Brown at the St. Louis boarding house is, according to Dr. Norbury, characteristic of the mental state under which he was laboring.

"John W. Henry came to the realization of who he was and where he was. He tried to phone out his brother, he knew that a reward was offered for his capture and he preferred if he had done anything wrong to come in and make a manly surrender; he wanted to see his wife and learn the real facts; he wanted to come and see the wife whom the State would have you believe he wanted to kill a few days before. Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord, I will repay. So vengeance is not yours, it is yours to render justice only and to do as you would expect to be done by under a like relation of facts. They say we are asking for mercy, but we are asking only for justice. Consider what you would expect from John W. Henry if you were in his place and he sat in your chair. Consider too something of the family history, the standing of the father who is known to you all. Were it not for his presence in this trial he would doubtless be with his former comrades in arms out at the cemetery placing flowers upon the graves of fallen heroes. And I believe too that you would find him placing flowers upon the tomb of Charles Ezard.

No Hatred for Henry.

"The wife of Charles Ezard and her relatives have no hatred in their hearts for this defendant, and have given their testimony in this case simply as a matter of duty under the law. If we had asked Dr. Ezard's truthfulness would have told you that John W. Henry's reputation was good. No motive has been shown why he should seek to slay the wife he loved, or the best friend he had. And I doubt not that John W. Henry would willingly go down into the grave today himself if by that he could bring back his friend to this earth. But I will draw this statement of facts to a close, for I realize that probably you may want to bring this case to an end as speedily as possible and return to your homes and possibly tomorrow attend some church service and worship the God who does not often condemn.

Mr. Hairgrove Closes Defense.

"I have known John Henry since boyhood, said William N. Hairgrove in closing the argument for the defense, and feel it my duty to speak a final word for him to warn you against what might be said by the prosecution. Judge Dayman will close the case for the state and his arguments will be full of weight. He will read to you an opinion of a supreme court judge which in accordance to law he has submitted to me and which I have reason to feel, may prove misleading to you. That case is not like the one before you. It is the case of a barber who had been separated from his wife and killed her after a quarrel."

"The insanity plea was overruled in this case," said Mr. Hairgrove after he had read the decision. "The barber in question had a motive but where could have been the motive of John Henry in this case?"

Mr. Hairgrove read from another decision in which it was held that evidence of previous good character should be considered by the jury whenever the insanity plea is made. A supplemental opinion declared that if a reasonable doubt of malice a forethought could be shown, then the verdict should go to the defendant. "Where is the malice in this case? Has a single witness declared John Henry to be of a malignant nature? If you make a mistake in this case and make this man a murderer, his blood will be upon your head and your conscience will never give you rest."

"Who shall decide when experts disagree? Those who decided that this man was sane said nothing of his physical condition prior to the actions after the crime or about his mental condition. Had the question propounded Drs. Crouch and Bowe taken into consideration the full facts, they would have answered that John Henry was insane. The hypothetical question of the state asked of Drs. Norbury and Dollear, would have been answered 'sane.'"

His Character Questioned

"Fortunate indeed is the man who can rightfully claim for himself the good reputation which has been provided for the defendant by every man who has testified. You must remember that this man was not stranger in the community. His neighbors understood his character and each one had for him the best of words. The members of his church understood him and considered him as worthy of high office. John Henry and Charles Ezard were deacons in the church together.

"How can you account for the facts if you do not consider the defendant to have been insane? When a man kills his lifelong friend and says he does not care, when a man shoots down the neighbor with whom he had the evening before he had been on the best of terms, he surely could not have been sane."

Health Was Impaired.

"John Henry's health was seriously impaired. His heart had become almost inactive and faulty circulation of the blood clogged up the brain. The defendant's face was pale on the night of the crime and his eyes were white and shiny. He had not taken nourishment, refusing all food. From Tuesday until Friday he had no connection of what he did or where he was. It was a form of insanity, said Dr. Norbury. All these symptoms pointed to the fact that he was mentally unbalanced. He lost all consciousness of who and where he was until in the cheap lodging house in St. Louis he came to himself."

"He came to himself, as did the son in the story of the prodigal," said Mr. Hairgrove in giving his version of the well known New Testament story. "I once thought that when the son, living in the hog-pens with their mire, repented and arose

HERE IS SUPER-STRENGTH

REO THE FIFTH is designed by a man who believes in super-strength. He has learned this need through 27 years of car building.

In this 35-horsepower car, every driving part is made to meet the requirements of a 50-horsepower engine. And every test goes far beyond the usual requirements.

FOR INSTANCE

For years we have kept test chassis on the road. Relays of drivers have run them at high speed night and day. After 10,000 miles of this reckless driving we take the car apart and inspect it.

Not only must the chassis stand that test, but every vital part must stay new. It must hold up little evidence of wear.

We could build this car for one-fourth less by just skipping the hidden parts. Under normal conditions it might for a time serve you as well as this. But it could not stay new. And it might cost you hundreds of extra dollars in troubles, repairs and upkeep.

DOES IT PAY?

It pays us to give you the utmost in a car. We have in this way held the lead in our class. The demand for such cars has grown and grown, faster than we could supply it.

We are building for the future -- for what men will say five years after buying the car.

It also pays owners to buy such a car, when they buy a car to keep.

GO AND SEE.

Go and see this car. See the handsome streamline body, the perfect equipment, electric lights, and starter, deep upholstering, perfect finish.

Then go below all that. Get the details of this costly chassis. Find out why each car is six weeks in the building.

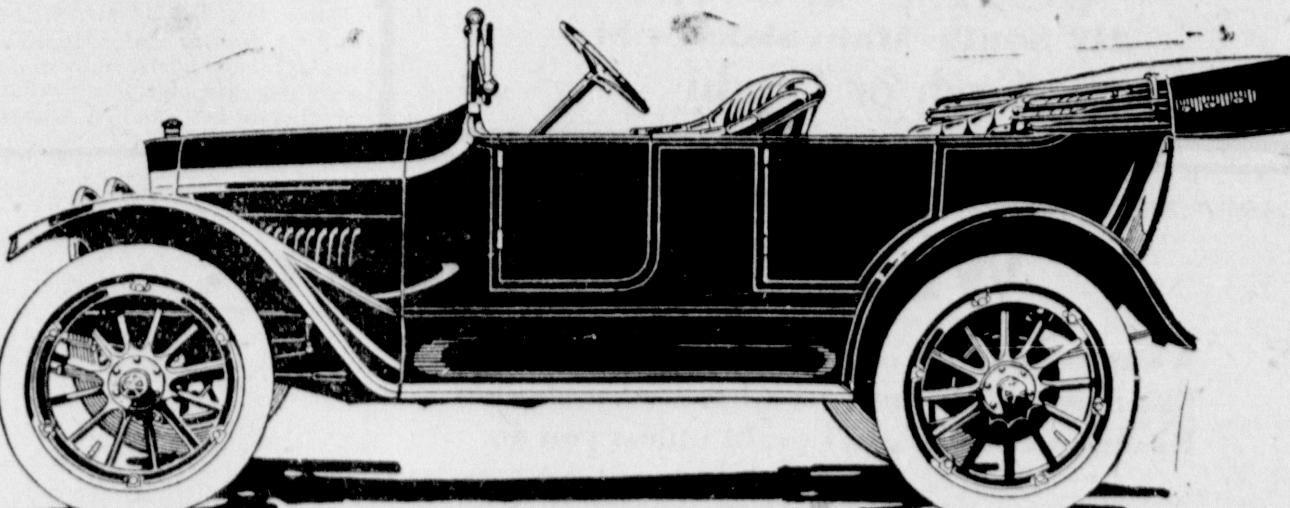

Then note how low we have brought the price. Last year's price was $1,395, with electric starter and lights. This year it is $220 less. Most of that saving comes from the fact that all our special machinery for building this car has been charged against previous output.

We are giving you here the best we know, regardless of time and cost. The more you know about motor car troubles, the more such a car will appeal to you.

finding which tended largely discredited expert testimony. Bear in mind the evidence and facts in this whole case and that as to the question of reasonable doubt that there must be a binding conviction as to a reasonable doubt and not merely a conjectural one."

E. E. Hairgrove's Plea.

Elmer E. Hairgrove followed for the defense and said in part:

"I come to you a stranger, although many of the early years of my life were spent in this county. And as a boy, I knew all the Henry family. When I read in the papers of the tragedy it seemed to me like a night mare and I said to myself No this could not have been John W. Henry who committed this act of violence, but rather it must have been something acting through him; some impulse over which he had no control. Together in accordance of the laws of this great state we have gathered here to settle and find out the facts as to this happening. In doing so we must consider the life acts of this man and the strain of blood which runs through his veins. The evidence shows that he was borne in the very house from which he started on the journey which ended in the death of his very best friend. John Henry and the man who lost his life were more than mere friends; more than mere neighbors. If we had called to the stand the widow of Charles Ezard and had asked her with reference to this man's record and life she would have testified without a feeling of resentment or of rancor.

"I do not believe that you will find it in the heart of Mrs. Ezard to say that she believed this act was that of her friend and neighbor as she had known him. I believe that she looks upon him as she did upon the night of January 24th, when the two families gathered at the Henry home for an oyster supper. The children of the dead man do not feel any resentment toward the defendant and I know that there exists in the heart of all the Henrys the deepest sympathy for Mrs. Ezard in her loss. John Henry is here charged with the crime of murder and you are here to fasten it upon him or to clear his name. The prosecution would have you believe that on the night of January 27th, that John W. Henry sought to kill his wife. John Henry kill his wife, do the attorneys of the prosecution believe it? Do you jurors believe it? Does a man who had lived such a life as John W. Henry lived, loved and loving in his family, does he spring so suddenly loved to murder?"

"They want you to believe that his wife had been doing something that he did not want; had been devoting her time to aid societies which he did not approve; yet, the evidence shows that Charles Ezard and John W. Henry attended such gatherings themselves; John W. Henry was a deacon in church under whose auspices the society met. Who says that this woman neglected her family and what proof has there been adduced."

The Germ of Insanity.

"We do not claim that the years prior to the happening to January 27th indicated that John W. Henry was insane but the germs of insanity were there. You may have in your system today the germs of typhoid fever which will not be manifested for months afterward. In this man was a germ of insanity from hereditary sources in his system; there came worry, there came insomnia, there came a failure to eat, and amelated condition; the body became more or less weakened and the germs of insanity multiplied. The state has attempted to prove that the puerperal fever was not an evidence of hereditary insanity, yet Dr. Norbury explained that the record of Mrs. Barbour's case undoubtedly indicated the hereditary taint. The State has maintained that John W.

DECORATION DAY

DULY OBSERVED

SPLENDID PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR OCCASION.

Bishop Fallows Pays Tribute of Respect to Dead Soldiers.—Graves of Veterans Decorated With Flowers.

Decoration Day has come and gone and the manner in which it was observed is a credit to the city. As requested by the Grand Army post the city council took up the matter of financing the day and Mayor Davis and Commissioner Knollenberg did good work collecting funds for the band and general expenses.

The contributions of flowers were reasonably liberal though a good many more could have been used, but there were enough to strew each grave that was duly designated in the various cemeteries pertaining to the city.

The ladies of the Relief Corps were early on hand at G. A. R. hall and received the flowers offered and arranged them suitably for the purpose intended. The day passed off well and the committee of arrangements is entitled to all praise for faithful and efficient work.

At the appointed time a committee proceeded to Diamond Grove cemetery and Calvary cemetery and duly adorned the graves of veterans in these places and the number is considerable.

In the afternoon the old soldiers and members of the Relief Corps assembled at G. A. R. hall where the ladies pinned bouquets on the coats of the veterans. It was a bit pathetic to observe that the ranks are getting thinner and thinner each year, yet a goodly number yet assembled for the exercises of the day. Major McDougall acted as adjutant and formed the line and turned it over to Commander John A. Schaub and led by Marshalls W. H. Jordan, A. D. Arnold, W. H. James and O. H. Spaulding the line marched to the Dunlap house to escort the orator of the day, Comrade Samuel Fallows of Chicago.

Program at Centenary.

There they were awaited by Co. B. of the Fifth Regiment, Ill. Militia, and headed by the band marched to Centenary church. Bishop Fallows preferring to march with the boys and not to ride. The Jeffries concert band distinguished itself as usual with superb music.

The church was handsomely decorated, the articles placed there last Sunday having been left in place. Owing to poor health Commander Schaub requested Major McDougall to preside which he did with all ability. Each number on the program was good but lack of space prevents notice. The following was the program:

Music by the band.
Invocation—Rev. R. O. Post, D.D.
Solo—Mrs. Genevieve Clark Wilson.
"The Land of Hope and Glory."
Recitation, Abraham Lincoln—Mrs. T. A. Ebrey.Music by the band.
Reading, Gen. Logan's first order for Decoration Day.—Dr. T. J. Pinner.Reading, Longfellow's Building of the Ship.—Prof. J. H. Rayhill.
Solo, "The Star Spangled Banner."
Mrs. Genevieve Clark Wilson, the audience joining in the chorus.

Reading, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.—Principal C. E. Collins.

Miss Myrtle Larimore ably accompanied Mrs. Wilson. In introducing the orator of the day, Major McDougall said, the gentleman was once introduced by Gen. Sherman, who remarked that the proposed speaker had been a colonel and was now a bishop so people could call him either, but the major said he preferred to call him Comrade Samuel Fallows, and so would introduce him.

Address of Bishop Fallows.

Of the excellent address which followed a few outlines are given.
"The extended speech which I want to deliver and which is probably now in type I shall not use today as it is warm and the time is getting late."

At the funeral of Gen. U. S. Grant I spoke before the most distinguished audience I ever addressed. The president of the United States was present, senators, generals, members of the national cabinet and others. My theme was the American soldier to whom we owe all honor. When General Grant was making a tour of the world a gentleman remarked to him in address of welcome that it was the illustrious visitor who saved his country. Gen. Grant declined to accept any such sweeping compliment and insisted that a due need of praise be bestowed on the soldiers who fought so bravely for the defense of their country and flag.

"We should always respect the uniform of the United States soldier and both officers and men should always be gentlemen but we regard them as citizens rather than soldiers. There is no place in our vocabulary for any such word as militarism; we are a people of peace and good will and neither here, in the Philippines nor anywhere else are we to be regarded as a nation of soldiers but as true patriots ready if called on to make all sacrifices for our country."

"Ours is the rule of the citizen. The time was when the nation was bleeding at every pore and she called for brave men to defend her and two and a half million brave patriots responded and though the cost was terrible, the nation was saved to take her place in the foremost ranks of the people of the world."

"The fountain of grief and the fountain of mirth are very near together. A stroke of the artist up means joy, and down means sorrow and with an illustrious orator we would say, 'tears for the dead, cheers for the living.' Now there are onerous duties to be performed and they demand our serious attention."

Forecasted War.
"The illustrious McCauley, one time received from a friend a copy of the life of Thomas Jefferson and said he took it with thanks and would read it with interest, and added:

"You have a grand country here. You have a constitution but it has no anchor, and the time will come when your government will be put to the test. It will be severe and you will fail and your government will be numbered with the democracies of the past and which are now no more."

"That was in 1859 and sooner than some expected the test did come and our government did stand the test. The good ship of state was at sea with tall sails spread when she was struck by a tremendous wind and there was no time to get ready and it looked as if the nation was doomed. There were mutineers on board the good ship and they were ready to scuttle her and see her go to the bottom. We gave her power to the deep and the helm to Abraham Lincoln. He spoke and two and a half million men sprang to arms. He reached out over the sea and a navy, the best the world had known up to that time appeared on the waves. He breathed into the air an money flowed into the treasury to pay the cost in that direction and now the ship of state floats, the proudest and most gallant craft in the world."

"At a recent funeral of a comrade the veterans sat on the platform behind me and in front were a great many children. Some of them were about the age I was when I began at seventeen to teach school, when mothers who couldn't manage their children themselves committed them to me. I love children and at that funeral I tried to instill into their minds lessons of patriotism. I pointed to the men behind me and remarked that they were not very handsome or attractive but that their record was glorious. Some of them they probably called 'daddy', for age never cools the blood of the brave and some granddaddy and while they are not handsome you should put your arms about them and show them that you love and respect them. I love children for they are our best asset of all."

Refers to Capt. Smith.

"I was glad today to greet in your place a man who was the first to enlist in Illinois. A man who went into the service at sixteen, rose to the rank of captain and largely saved the day at Altona Pass and thus the army of Sherman, and made possible the famous march to the sea, and I saw the flag pierced with 200 bullets and the staff shot to pieces by a cannon ball."

(At the close of his address the gentleman remarked that he referred to Capt. Alex. Smith, so well known here.)

"In a great throng on a public occasion a man saw a little Russian Jew girl kiss the flag and was deeply touched for it showed what the flag means for the oppressed of other nations who come here and do their best."

"This is a warm day but not so warm as some of the places we have been in in our day."

"We honor the dead but let me say with all authority they will never die. There is really no such thing as death for our Saviors has abolished it and has brought life and immortality to light. What we term death is only a transition from one life to another. I hope to meet my comrades where the angels call the roll in the great and glad morning."

At the close of the address the line was formed with police, and children, Co. B., veterans, citizens, and others, and all proceeded to the Jacksonville cemetery where the exercises were duly concluded according to the ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic.

MEMORIAL DAY IN PARIS.

Paris, May 30.—The American colony in Paris observed Memorial day in accordance with customs today. For many years past the leading feature was a pilgrimage to the Picpus cemetery, where many handsome floral offerings were deposited about the tomb of Lafayette. The American embassy and consulate remained closed during the day.

By WALT MASON.

Our flags are flying at half mast, and crepe is on our doors; our noblest relic gone at last to distant, alien shores. The wrestler's crown is ours no more, the garland of the wreath; our hearts are sad, our heads are sore, and we have aching teeth. From Poland's shore there came a gent whose name is but a joke, and our American he bent across his knee and broke. We cannot hail imported beef with vim, like sporting men, till we've recovered from our grief, and got our nerve again. And now to Gotsch's sylvan farm, we turn, in our despair; is there no talisman or charm, to lure him from his lair? Is there no way, we ask, to drag the Gotsch from his retreat? Will he defend the starry flag, or has he got cold feet? You know how at Jim Jeffries' door we pounded, on a day, when all our hearts were sick and sore, our laurels wrenched away. And Jeffries came to bring them back, a figure grand, sublime; what happened then—alas! alas! we'll tell some other time. And now all patriots demand that Gotsch, the great and strong, should keep the laurels in this land, where surely they belong.

NEW STRELITZ

Berlin, May 30.—A despatch from New Strelitz says the little capital was en fete today in celebration of the tenth anniversary of Adolphus Frederick as the reigning grand duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz. The grand duke is probably the wealthiest of all the German sovereigns. More than one-half of the grand duchy, which comprises about 1,000 square miles, is his private property. In a political sense Mecklenburg-Strelitz is a strange anomaly in the midst of modern Europe, for its constitution dates from the middle of the sixteenth century. The little county is ruled absolutely by the grand duke and no kind of parliamentary representation exists.

NEWS FORECASTS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Washington, May 30.—Iowa will hold a state wide primary Monday for the nomination of candidates for United States senator and for governor and other state officers to be voted for in November. Senator Albert B. Cummins is a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket and is opposed by Arthur C. Savage, a member of the state senate. Congressman Maurice Connolly of Dubuque, and Edwin T. Meredith of Des Moines are contesting for the Democratic nomination for senator. Governor Clarke is a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket and has as his chief opponent Judge C. G. Lee of Ames. Wednesday is the day set for the beginning of final arguments in the United States district court at Philadelphia in the suit of the government for the dissolution of the Reading company for alleged violations of the anti-trust law.

A general holiday will be kept throughout the south on Wednesday in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. On the following day the magnificent monument erected in the Confederate soldiers' cemetery will be unveiled with impressive ceremonies in which President Wilson and other notables are expected to take part.

The University of Missouri is to celebrate its 75th anniversary on Wednesday, with Secretary of Agriculture Houston as the speaker of the day. On Thursday the commencement exercises will be held. The address to the graduates will be delivered by President Lowell of Harvard university.

Of interest to sporting enthusiasts on both sides of the Atlantic will be the first trial race of the three candidates for defense of America's cup, which is scheduled to take place Tuesday on Long Island Sound.

Conventions of the week will include the annual meetings of the National Association of Clothiers, at Atlantic City; the Anti-Cigarette League of America, at Lake Mohonk, N. Y., and the Associated Harvard clubs, at Chicago.

Events of the week abroad will include the birthday celebration of Pope Pius X., the assembling of the new French parliament, the opening of the international horse show in London, and the dedication of the American College for Girls, at Constantinople.

AMERICAN SALVATIONISTS SAIL

New York, May 30.—The most remarkable body of pilgrims that ever left these shores sailed out of New York harbor today on the steamship Olympic, bound for London to attend the world congress of the Salvation Army. The party comprised upwards of 700 officers and soldiers of the Salvation Army in the United States and was in charge of Commander Eva Booth. In the delegation were cowboys, Indians, Texas rangers, fishermen from the Pacific coast, clam diggers from Washington, fruit growers from California, former slum dwellers of New York and a good sized group of "regenerated drunkards." Not the least remarkable fact in connection with the pilgrimage is that every member of the delegation pays his or her own expenses to London and return.

SOME OFF-SIDE CHUTES.

Many astic fans are under the impression that Ritchie on Tuesday evening lost the lightweight title when Charley White so decisively trounced him. The Chicago newsboy was given what is termed a popular decision; that is the verdict of a majority of the sporting writers at the ringside. These decisions are made principally to determine the course of the speculative market in these unofficial bouts and have no bearing whatever in a battle for the championship. Had White pushed a knockout into the Ritchie anatomy
he would not have become champion because under the boxing law of Wisconsin a decision by a referee is not permitted. Under Queensberry rules, when a battler is unable to respond to the call of time, or when one commits a foul or the sponge or towel is dashed into the ring by his handlers, the referee raises the right hand of the man who is on his feet and ready to continue. This is the official signal and the money and championship are cashed on this verdict.

Down Boston way fight promoters are getting down to rock bottom in their scale for mediocre boxing talent. Last Wednesday at the Hub, Knockout Brown, the Greek middleweight, drew down $75 as his portion of the plunder for winning over Bob Moha in twelve rounds.

Virginia has crabbed bookmaking on the running races in that commonwealth. Nine of the pencils were arrested, tried and given six months in jail in addition to a fine of $500 each for setting in at the recent Jamestown meeting. On a promise to never again engage in bookmaking in the state, the jail sentences were suspended. The Norfolk County Jockey club now has quite a pretentious racing plant on its hands, one that will be of little use to its stockholders except as a training camp, and training camps for the goo-gos do not jingle at the turnstiles.

There were no American fillies in the Epsom Oaks on Friday, consequently the Joel three-year old Princess Dorrie captured the English
Ladies' Derby.

Within the next sixty days, according to ex-cathara Federal dope, the baseball war will be on in earnest. The so-called outlaws, President Gilmore avers, will in that time have their underground mines in working order for the annihilation of the organized forces. Reports from St. Louis Saturday indicated that the fireworks would be set off tomorrow and Tuesday, when a raid would be made on the Cardinals. In Chicago, too, there has been some mysterious meetings held, at which American association moguls were fraternizing with Joe Tinker, Gilmore and other leaders of the independents. It is said Minneapolis, St.
Joseph and other teams in the Class
AA organization are making ready to jump the organized baseball compact and cast their lot with the baby combination. Something will have to be done, and done quickly if the Feds are to survive. The western clubs, all of them, lost money in the recent eastern tour because of the bush ball served, not alone by the much advertised stars of the east, the people early in the season were promised that each of the Federal teams would carry at least seven stars; but when the clubs lined up the stars promised were lacking to such degree that after the opening games the fans commenced to forget the routes to the Federal parks and up to date they continue to forget.

Denver fans for several years have been omitting heart-rending howls because their Western league team continued to win the pennant. The bugs were praying and praying for a team less nifty in defense and offense. The mountaineers just now are getting an elegant sufficiency of their desires. The Denver team on the present eastern invasion is gathering its daily bumps in no uncertain manner.

Wonders (in baseball) never cease. Friday Manager Clark, Catch-Gibson and Coach Fraser were banished at Cincinnati for protesting some of Umpire Rigler's decisions.
This display of pepper upon the part of the Pirates should raise the percentage of their chances for that National league bunting.

Wichita is again shaky on the Western league map. The representatives of Congressman Mur-dock's city are so low in the percentage column the people will not turn out to watch the other teams go rough shod through their breast-works. The games scheduled for today and tomorrow have been transferred from the home lot to St.
Joseph.

Football officials representing nearly all of the eastern colleges met in New York Friday and unanimously adopted resolutions endorsing Glenn Warner, coach at Carlisle, and giving him a clean bill. The resolutions were forwarded to the commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington and will probably end what at its worst was but a midgeet tempest in a very small kettle.

Major Dalton, at the head of the band in the Memorial day parade yesterday, looked about as handsome as he did in the good old days when a baseball uniform with its spangles was so becoming to his athletic bearing.

FARMERS ARE WARNED

Time to Prepare to Save the Corn Crop From the Ravages of the Chinch Bug.

From time to time during the past fall and winter, the state entomologist and the State Farmers' Institute have issued bulletins giving information in reference to the condition and distribution of the chinch bug. These bulletins repeatedly advised that if we did not have a wet spring, which would eliminate many of the bugs which came safely through the winter, the damage in a number of counties in western and central Illinois from these insects would be great.

Unfortunately we have had an unusually dry spring and practically all of the parent bugs have survived and have deposited their eggs on the roots and stems of the wheat and oats plants in great abundance; this brood will be hatched and feeding on the small grain crops when they are harvested. The cutting of this grain will deprive the young bugs of food, and as they will not yet have developed wings, it will be necessary for them to crawl to the nearby corn fields for food.

Assistant State Entomologist W. P. Flint, and the writer, have just returned from a tour of inspection of fields in Sangamon county and we have to report that every field inspected is badly infested with the chinch bug. Mr. Flint's opinion is that possibly, the bugs will not very materially effect the yield of wheat, but he feels sure that when the grain is harvested the bugs will migrate to the adjacent corn fields, unless prevented from doing so, where they will do great damage.

Farmers are advised to inspect their wheat fields. They are cautioned not to conclude that their field are not seriously infested when they fail to find large numbers of the bug; the parent bugs hide in the cracks in the earth during the warm days and few may be discovered, yet it should be borne in mind that a very few of these insects may deposit millions of eggs. Pull up the wheat stools and carefully examine the roots and the stems near the roots for the little pink or red clusters of eggs; they are very small and usually deposited beneath the outer coverings of the stems of the wheat and will not be discovered unless a careful examination is made.

Dr. Forbes says beyond a doubt a field of corn lying beside a field of heavily infested wheat can be completely protected against injury by chinch bugs moving out of the field of wheat on foot at harvest time, by laying a narrow lane of crude creosote, or of crude carbolic acid, renewing this line at intervals of one, two, three days or more, and trapping and killing the bugs by means of post holes dug at intervals of 20 feet beside the line.

Dr. Forbes further says that any farmer can virtually exterminate the chinch bugs infesting a field of wheat by surrounding it with this barrier or line of crude creosote.

The cost of maintaining the creosote line, per mile, during the season, in localities where it has been successfully used, is $13, exclusive of labor.

Probably the best way to use the creosote is to throw a back furrow next to the wheat, in the corn field; spike together so as to form an inverted "pig trough" two boards 2x12 inches-10 feet long; round the corners at one end and attach a team; place the trough astride the back furrow and drag it back and forth until a compact ridge of fine earth has been formed; then from a vessel provided with a small spout, run a line of the crude creosote along the apex of the ridge. If a fine line of common salt, or fine manure is formed along the ridge before the creosote is applied, the line does not have to be renewed so often.

It would be well for every farmer who has a field of corn lying beside a wheat field to make careful examination of the wheat, and if it is infested, make preparation for the invasion that is sure to come. Hundreds of thousands of dollars in crop values may be saved by energetic and intelligent action by farmers in this direction. And, incidentally, while we are fighting to save our crops from the ravages of insects, let us remember that we are allowing the slaughter of the quail and other native insect eating birds, which if allowed to do so, would be one of the greatest factors in the protection of crops.—H. A. McKeene, Secretary, Illinois Farmers' Institute, Springfield, Ill.

The Wrong Bertie.
Sir Francis Bertie was once the center of an amusing muddle at Windsor. It happened during the reign of Queen Victoria, when Sir Francis was permanent under secretary of state for foreign affairs. Wanting to consult Lord Ponsonby about a certain matter, he telegraphed to him at Windsor: "Shall be down tonight, Bertie."

The telegram was shown to the queen, and as Bertie was the name she always used to her son, the late King Edward, she came to the conclusion that he was going to pay her an unexpected visit. When Sir Francis arrived he was considerably taken aback at the elaborate preparations that had been made to receive him, and the queen laughed heartily at the trick he had all unconsciously played on her, but when he was leaving she suggested that he should in future sign his telegrams in some other way.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Better One.
At the monthly meeting of a certain housing society, one of the members related an interesting experience. He had recently sold a couple of "squabbers"—very young pigeons—to a man whose cote was 200 miles away. He sent them off by train and was astonished to find them back in the cote two days later.

There was a painful silence, broken at length by the president's "Wonderful!"

"You doubt my word?" demanded the narrator of the story.
"Not a bit of it," was the reply. "It's a strange coincidence, that's all. I sold the very same man a setting of eggs in the middle of June. Before the end of the month those birds had hatched out and had flown back to me! Homing instinct? a wonderful thing!"—Youth's Companion.

The Order of the Seraphim.
The Order of the Seraphim is the oldest and most famous of the decorations in the gift of the king of Sweden. Originally it was instituted by Magnus IV., some 600 years ago, to commemorate the siege of Upsala, the ancient capital of the Swedish kings, and its statutes bound the recipients of the order to fight to the death for the maintenance of their religion and to constitute themselves the special protectors of the widow and the fatherless. When it was revived about the middle of the eighteenth century by King Frederick the obligations laid upon the members were somewhat less onerous. The decoration consists of an eight pointed star in white enamel with cherubs' heads of gold and is worn on a broad band of pale blue ribbon.

Banana Meal.
It has been proved in India and the Malay peninsula that the produce from one acre of bananas or plantains, as the fruit is termed in that region, will support a much greater number of people than a similar area under any other crop, and the immense yield may be preserved for an indefinite period by drying the fruit and preparing meal from it. Plantain meal is made by stripping off the husk, slicing the core, drying it in the sun and then reducing it to powder, and finally sifting. It is calculated that the fresh core will give 40 per cent of meal and that an acre of average quality will yield over a ton.

THREE RACING YACHTS TO MEET THIS WEEK

Events Under the Auspices of the New York Club.

New York, May 30.—The Defiance, Resolute and Vanitie, the three yachts built as candidates for the defense of the America's cup, are to meet for the first time next week. Three races are scheduled for the trio of defenders, the first to be held Tuesday and the others on succeeding days. The races will be conducted under the auspices of the New York Yacht club. They will be sailed in Long Island sound, with the start off Great Captains' island, near Greenwich, Conn.

These initial races will mean much to the owners and managers of the three sloops, though the results will have no decisive bearing on the election of the defender. The actual trial races, the winner of which will be selected to meet Shamrock IV. in the cup contests, will take place off Newport during the third week of August.

On June 10, 11 and 12 the three candidates will be tried out over the regular cup course off Sandy Hook. The distance will be the same as in the international race.

Of the trio of candidates the Herreshoff yacht Resolute appears the favorite among yacht sharps. The majority of the experts have expressed the opinion that the reduced sail area plan which is to be used on the Resolute will give that craft a decided advantage in allowances over the Vanitie and Defiance. Herreshoff's reputation of turning out winners also cuts considerable of a figure when it comes to picking the favorite before the trial races. In designing and building speedy racing yachts the Bristol skipper has few if any equals. This fact alone is bound to influence the betting on the coming races.

But no race is won until the winner crosses the finish line, so the owners and designers of the Vanitie and the Defiance may be excused if they figure chances of these craft to be as good as those of the Resolute.

The Vanitie is known as the Cochran yacht. Its owner is Alexander Smith Cochran, a yachting enthusiast of Yonkers, N. Y. The yacht was designed by William Gardner, and built by the George Lawley & Sons company at Neponset, Mass.

George Owen, the designer of the Defiance, has been backed by what is known as the tri-city syndicate, composed of New York, Philadelphia and Boston yachtsmen. The Defiance was built by the Bath Iron Works, Bath, Me. Her distinguishing feature is a 148 foot mast, that is said to be the tallest stick ever placed on a racing yacht.

The Resolute, the third candidate, is owned by a syndicate of which Robert W. Emmons is the managing director. The yacht was designed by Nat Herreshoff and built at the Herreshoff yards at Bristol, R. I.

It is unnecessary to state that no expense has been spared in building the three yachts. Those who have had experience in the sport estimate that the total expense of defending the famous trophy against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV., will come close to half a million dollars.

The defense of the cup is a national affair and is regarded by yachtsmen as of such importance that the best design, the best material and the best workmanship must be had at any cost. The work of designing a cup defender entails many times as much labor as is employed in designing an ordinary craft of the same size. Every detail is calculated to the greatest nicety. The size of every part is proportioned to its work and the strength of every bit of material that goes into the boat is closely calculated.

In addition to the large initial expense incurred in the designing and the building of the racing yachts, there is the expense of the crew, and charges for towing, repairs and numerous other things that would never occur to the lay mind.

An expert skipper and a crew of fifty or more men are engaged and under pay weeks before the yacht is launched. The members of the crew are paid their salaries and provided with food and clothing for a period of seven or eight months and it is customary to charter special steamers upon which to berth the men during the entire season of racing.

BUGGIES AND HARNESS

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

Between finding a buggy at your price and finding one that suits you at your price. If it is merely a question of spending a certain amount of money and not caring what you get, it doesn't make much difference where you buy. But if you are after a carriage that has style, comfort and service, and one that is guaranteed to give satisfaction, we have no hesitation in saying that we can take better care of you than any one here or elsewhere. Our stock includes all the popular modern styles in both high grade and medium work. The variety makes choosing easy; the prices make paying easier. If you intend buying a vehicle this year, why not drop in and talk it over.

SPLENDID ART EXHIBIT OF ILLINOIS WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Many View the Work of the Student
During Past Year Under Direction of Miss Knopf.

Again the art department of the Woman's College has come before the public with an annual exhibit and each time there is something new and always something well worth the attention of all who enjoy progress and the things that go to make life pleasant and happy. We all want the essentials and also want the ornamental, the things that are a joy forever and under the careful tutelage of Miss Knopf the young ladies of the college have certainly done admirably. The studio in the upper story of the building is admirably adapted to the purpose for which it is intended and the work on display there well challenges the attention of all.

The effort of the teacher is to lay a good foundation for it is impossible to erect a good superstructure without something on which to build and while the young pupils are something possibly restive they soon see the wisdom of the course.

First the visitor sees a screen on which are displayed problems in design and they are remarkably ingenious. On a sheet of paper the teacher notes certain things to be done in figures, formation of alphabets, analysis of colors and the like. One plan is to take a Japanese brush and make a number of strokes and select those which produce the best results and combine them in figures with charming results. Various combinations are thus made and all tend to the development of the talent in the pupil.

The second year pupils are taught adaptation of motif. For instance they draw designs from Egyptian subjects, structures, columns, papyrus, ornamental work and then add the colors that seem to agree with the colors used originally and such as are suitable for the purpose. In this there is much opportunity for the display of taste and originality. Perspectives, interiors and other features are introduced and much similar work is done and all with good results.

The black and white or charcoal work is always attractive and when well done requires genuine skill. Miss Knopf has some new casts this year and they are excellent. They are from ancient Greek sculpture in bas relief and give fine opportunity for the exercise of skill and faithfulness to detail. Then a number of still life studies are meritorious and excite much favorable comment.

The range of water colors is large and the subjects varied. Flowers in natural hues abound and still life subjects are admirably done. The list this year is rather larger than usual and the work is of a superior order of merit.

Of course china decorating has not been neglected and some good specimens in that line are to be seen.

One is always glad to get around to the oil paintings for somehow they seem to be more solid and substantial though of course comparisons are odious, each class of work having its own attractions and merits. While the oils are not so numerous they are very good and show fine talent. It takes an artist to paint a good oil picture and there are several of them on the walls of the studio giving conclusive evidence of the work executed by the young ladies in that direction. The subjects are varied and all show conscientious effort.

In some respects the most attractive display, or the most striking, was that of the Friday sketch class. This consisted of pencil sketches mostly of persons. This is a class of work that requires special talent without which a person would do well not to waste any time. The work of the young ladies in this department was wonderfully good and the familiar faces of their subjects beamed on the spectator telling of the ability of the young artists. As a whole the exhibit is very creditable and one in which the teacher and all interested in the college may take pride.

A RIVER DISASTER OF LONG AGO
Speaking of disasters by water B. R. Upham called the attention of the Journal to a fearful disaster during the civil war. The Mississippi river steamer "Sultana" blew up near Memphis and ended the lives of over 1600 people. Mr. Upham said he had ridden on the boat many a time and she was a fine craft though at the time of the accident she was much overloaded. The persons killed were mostly soldiers. One man aboard was very fleshy and as Mr. Upham remarked, too fat to drown, and he escaped with his life and was in the regiment with which Mr. Upham was connected.

A FINE OPPORTUNITY.
A fine opportunity is presented the ladies of Jacksonville at present in the remarkable sale of J. Herman, dealer in millinery and ready to wear garments. Mr. Herman means what he says and the goods he offers are strictly first class and as advertised as is always the case. If any lady wants to get something really good at a very moderate cost now is her opportunity. See the advertisement on page 14.

SOME FINE CALVES.
Charles West residing in the vicinity of Woodson, recently sold Jordan McAllister fifty yearling heifer calves at $8.35. Mr. West bought them last fall and fed them through the winter and they came out in as fine shape as well could be imagined for they had had the best of care and feed and were good at the start.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE NOTES

Alumni, alumnae and friends of the college are invited to the Orange picnic supper on the campus at five o'clock on Monday, June 8th. The college will furnish free coffee and a caterer will be on hand to furnish ice cream. There will not be this year any large single picnic groups. Each class, each family group, or party of friends will provide their own luncheon.

The Whipple seniors are busy rehearsing for a play which they will give at the Whipple commencement. President and Mrs. Rammelkamp entertained the college seniors at the annual senior supper on Saturday evening.

The ever handsome silver "Reunion Trophy" cup, donated by the Chicago Society of Illinois College, has arrived and is on exhibition at Russell and Lyon's. The cup is donated to encourage class reunions at commencement time. Mr. Harry J. Dunbaugh '99, a member of the Board of Trustees of the college and a director of the alumni fund, was in town on Friday.

Professor Ames went to St. Louis in his auto on Wednesday. He witnessed the Historical Pageant in St. Louis, and later went to Kansas City to meet his children, who were returning from New Mexico.

Alumni and alumnae, as well as faculty, trustees and students, are expected to take part in the procession at the baccalaureate service on Sunday, June 7th. Seats will be reserved for all who participate in the procession. The procession will form in the parlors of the church at 10:30. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by President Ozoar S. Davis, of the Chicago Theological Seminary.

Reverend George C. Lenington '92 was in town recently.

AQUITANIA SAILS

AMIDST CHEERS.
Liverpool, May 30.—Amidst a great tooting of whistles aloft and ashore, that resounding down the Mersey must have been an enthusiastic "bon voyage" the Aquitania, the magnificent new Cunard liner and one of the largest vessels in the world, sailed out of this port today on her maiden voyage to America. The event was a notable one, and thousands of spectators assembled on the water front to witness the departure. It is expected the Aquitania will land her passengers in New York early on Friday.

The Aquitania is of 47,000 gross tonnage. She has a length of 901 feet or about 90 feet less than that of the New Hamburg-American liner Vaterland, which is the world's largest vessel. The Aquitania is claimed to be the most magnificent of all trans-Atlantic liners. Her cost exceeded $10,000,000. She is provided with every imaginable luxury and her interior fittings and furnishings are equal to those of the finest hotels in Europe or America. She carries a crew of more than 1,000 men and has accommodations for 650 first class passengers, 740 second class, and 2,400 steerage passengers.

CONNAUGHTS TO TOUR

EASTERN ONTARIO.
Toronto, Ont., May 30.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught will conclude their Toronto visit tomorrow and on Monday will begin a short tour of Eastern Ontario. Among the places to be visited by the vice regal party are Cobourg, Peterboro, Port Hope, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville, and Cornwall. At the end of the week the duke and duchess will go to Quebec, where they will remain in residence during the month of June.

MONUMENT TO THE "HIKER."
Newark, N. J., May 30.—The leading feature of the Memorial day celebration in Newark today was the dedication of a statue to "The Hiker," representing a typical American soldier of the Spanish war period. The statue, which was designed by Allen G. Newman, stands in McKinley circle. The local G. A. R. posts as well as the Spanish war veterans participated in the dedication exercises.

MINNEAPOLIS CATHEDRAL COMPLETED.
Minneapolis, May 30.—The first divine services in the magnificent new Pro Cathedral of St. Mary in this city will be conducted tomorrow, when high mass will be celebrated and Archbishop Ireland will preach the sermon. The interior of the church is not entirely finished, but the need for more room to accommodate the large attendance of the old church, which the pro cathedral displaces, prompted the church authorities to have the opening as early as possible. The pro cathedral has seen six years in building and will cost upwards of 1,000,000 when completed. The formal dedication, which will be accompanied by all the ceremonial pomp of the Roman Catholic ritual, will be in the late fall.

ANNIVERSARY OF JOHNSTOWN FLOOD.

Great Disaster Occurred Twenty-five Years Ago—Today—Over Two Thousand Lives were Lost.

Johnstown, Pa., May 30.—In practically every church in Johnstown special services are to be held tomorrow in memory of the victims of the Johnstown flood. It will be the 25th anniversary of the great disaster and today the graves of the dead were decorated as a part of the regular Memorial day program.

The Johnstown flood was the most disastrous to life that ever occurred in the United States. It was caused by the breaking of the dam of Conemaugh lake, about 18 miles up the Conemaugh river from Johnstown. The lake, which had formerly been a reservoir, was two and one-half miles long and one and a half miles wide. Its level was about 275 feet higher than the town.

For several days before the disaster the river and lake had been rising under incessant rains. When the water began to pour over the dam in an unusual volume a warning was sent to the people in the lower land, but as such alarms had been given before without any damage resulting, little heed was paid to the warning.

The break in the dam occurred at 3 p. m. and May 31, 1889, and the distance of 18 miles to Johnstown was traversed by the raging torrent in seven minutes. The advancing column of water met no obstacle until it reached the railroad bridge below the city. This served as a bulwark and turned the water back upon the town, thus greatly increasing the loss of life.

A total of 2,142 lives were lost in the flood. Only about one-half of the victims were identified. Ninety-nine families were lost. The loss of property was estimated at nearly $10,000,000. A fund of $3,000,000 was quickly raised for the relief of survivors. Aid was sent to the sufferers by all of the states, and many cities and countries of Europe contributed.

DUNKARDS HOLD CONVENTION.

Frankfort, Ind., May 31.—The yearly convention of the German Baptist denomination in the United States, commonly called the Dunkards, opened a week's session today on the farm of Joseph Metzger, in this county. For several days delegates and visitors have been arriving from all parts of the United States and it is estimated that the attendance will reach 10,000. Quite an innovation in the history of the Dunkards' convention has been the setting aside of seven acres of the camp grounds for the parking of automobiles belonging to the delegates. The program for the week's gathering provides for sermons by leading Dunkard ministers, both men and women; daily song services, a mammoth barbecue, and the public foot washing ceremony.

PHYSICIANS INDOORSE VINOL

To Create Strength and for Pulmonary Troubles.

Run-down, debilitated people, those who need strength, or who suffer from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis may find help in these letters.

Dr. C. L. Dreese, Goshen, N. Y., says: "In cases where the curative influence of cod liver oil is needed, I prescribe Vinol, which I find to be far more palatable and efficacious than other cod liver preparations. It is a worthy cod liver preparation in which a physician may have every confidence."

Dr. L. B. Bouchelle of Thomasville, Ga., says: "I have used Vinol in my family and in my general practice with the most satisfactory results. It is exceedingly beneficial to those afflicted with bronchial or pulmonary troubles, and to create strength."

Dr. W. N. Rand of Evans Mills, N. Y., says: "I want to say that I have used and prescribed Vinol in my practice and it will do all you claim for it and more."

We return your money if Vinol fails to help you.—Lee P. Allcott, Druggist, Jacksonville, Ill. P. S. For children's Eczema, Saxe Salve is guaranteed truly wonderful.

Classic Rules.

Palmerston used to greet all whom he did not know with "How d'ye do, and how's the old complaint?" which fitted all sorts and conditions of men. Trivial illustrations, indeed, which we may dismiss with this single note of recognition, that they are every whit as socially sincere as "literal truths" told often in such a way as to create an entirely false impression.

At times the ruse rises into a fine art. I recall the cunning artist who painted the beautiful Irish girl, twice a duchess, with a sunflower that turns from the sun to look at her, and Mrs. Gaskell's heroine, who, as amateur clerk, tries to make the old bookkeeper forget that she is a woman by whistling. A millionaire peasant of Russia wished Engel to give piano lessons to his daughter, but in order to lessen the cost thought that she might do without learning the black keys. The master sat down at the piano and played Chopin's etude on the black keys so divinely that the father exclaimed: "The devil take the 5 rubles! She shall learn to play on the black keys too!"—Atlantic Monthly.

Nailing Another Lie.

"Well, you're a son-of-a-bitch daughter. Hiram. I saw her washing dishes in the pantry just now. But why does she need a red light?"

"Washing dishes! She never did such a thing in her life. She's developing photographs, old chap."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Himself Again.

Kindly Old Gentleman regular visitor to the zoo—Keeper, how's your sick lion today? Has he got back his appetite for fresh meat? Keeper—That's as, sir. 'E's just eaten the veterinary sir, that was givin' 'im 'is physic, sir.—New York Post.

Relic of the Past.

"So, woman, you treasure another man's photograph?" "Don't be foolish, Henry. This is a portrait of yourself when you had hair."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

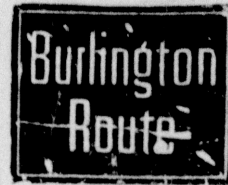

Chinese Writing.

The British museum contains the oldest known examples of Chinese writing in the form of inscriptions on animals' bones.

A Vacation on a Ranch

this summer will do you more good than a barrel of medicine. Get out into the open, close to nature and have the time of your life. Rest relax and recreate. Ride over sun-flooded trails in the hills; row on silvery lakes; fish in shady brooks; tramp down winding paths among the trees; loaf in safe valleys of green; stroll in the moonlight; eat of the fat of the land and sleep like a babe. Such a vacation pays tremendous health dividends. You will come back feeling like a different person.

In the Black Hills of South Dakota, in the Big Horn Mountains of Wyoming, in the Buffalo Bill country, along the Road into Yellowstone Park, there are countless places where you can spend just such a vacation and at a very moderate cost. The Hot Springs (S. D.) teem with life-giving and disease-curing qualities, while down at Thermopolis, in the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming, is a hot spring, the waters of which are as an anti-toxin to hundreds of ills that beset the human race.

We Have Two Good Reasons

The first, of course, is to extend the good name of this company, to widen its range of influence. Every new customer we get makes for us a permanent friend. We are out first to make friends.

Our second reason is that we intend to keep every one of our large force on full time (you know that all our work is done in Jacksonville by union workers) throughout the ordinarily more or less quiet summer months.

Come in and let us show you our splendid line of summer fabrics that will be made up into $21 suits. Ask to see the new Mohair Suitings and our two piece specials.

There now is no reason for not being a Tailored-to-Order Man—Especially when it will cost you less and enable you to present a better appearance

Ten Tempting, Timely Trade Twisters

Every day filled with bargains to suit the provident buyer. We must get rid of a mountain of merchandise. We can't tell you trade has been bad, for it has not. We won't tell you that the weather is dry, the Hessian fly and chinch bug are having a picnic, for you know that—but we will tell that we have too many goods and are going to move them when you need them, not waiting for the July bargain downpour, when you have to take what is left. Then prices figure only; but in the glorious month of June new styles and spring beauties are still with us.

Blood Trouble Often A Puzzling Question

The Searching Power of a Great Remedy Answers
the Worst Riddle.

Thousands Have Solved It With S. S. S.

It is now known that the germs of blood disorders are found in the minute spaces of the tissue fibers. They can be seen only through a powerful microscope. And it is in these spaces that S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderfully noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components vital and essential to healthy blood.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to its healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply, why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, all skin affections, rheumatism, sore throat, weak, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 221 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores.

Beware of all attempts to sell you some thing "just as good." Insist upon S. S. S.

We Keep Your Suit New!

The man who does not have his clothes dry cleaned and pressed frequently, does not get the full wear out of them.

Long before the clothes are worn out the lapels droop over, the coat front breaks, the sleeves wrinkle and pull out at the elbow, the trousers become baggy and lose their shape at the bottom, and the entire suit looks old and disreputable.

Our service keeps them clean and fresh, keeps them shaped right and fitting perfectly until they wear out. It's not only an aid to good dressing—but a real economy, as well.

Take advantage of it frequently.

CONSERVATORY NOTES.

The Conservatory orchestra, under Mr. Kritch's direction, will give its concert next Tuesday evening, June 2nd, at State Street church. The orchestra will be assisted by the Singing club, under Mr. French's direction and the women's portion of the Illinois College chorus. The proceeds of this concert will be given to the Jacksonville Free Kindergarten.

The Conservatory trio, Messrs. Kritch, Munger and Jensen, will play at the vesper service in State Street church on Sunday afternoon at 4:30. Mr. Kritch and Mr. Munger will also play solos.

The graduation recitals which took place Tuesday and Thursday evenings, May 26th and 28th, were most successful and well attended, notwithstanding the number of other entertainments given the same evenings. The candidates for teacher's certificate (8) and diploma (4) acquitted themselves in a manner creditable to their instructors and to their own ability.

A students' recital will be given in Recital hall next Thursday, June 4th, at 8 p. m. Several numbers for four hands, two pianos, will be included in the program, as well as vocal and violin solos. The public are invited.

A recital of students of Mrs. Bullard, Miss Jerauld, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Kritch was given Friday evening, May 29th.

Mrs. R. P. Joy entertained the class in musical appreciation at her home on West State street on Tuesday afternoon, May 19th.

An informal reception was held at Academy hall Thursday evening, after the graduation recital, the graduating students and their relatives, the Conservatory faculty, President and Mrs. Rammelkamp and Mrs. Garrison being the guests. Light refreshments were served.

A students' recital will be given on Monday afternoon, June 1st, at four o'clock in Recital hall. The public are cordially invited.

WILLIE KRAMER, CROSS COUNTRY KING. MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR GOOD.

Willie Kramer may never run again.
The former cross country king pulled a tendon in winning the three mile special at the Monument club games in Celtic park, New York city, and his physician asserted that it was very doubtful if the veteran distance runner ever be able to don spiked shoes once more. The injury is a recurrence of that which Kramer suffered on board the Finland while on the way to the 1912 Olympic games in Stockholm.
While practicing on the deck he pulled the tendon of Achilles of the left foot and was forced to retire from running for quite some time.

Leaves Large Sums to Schools.
SOMMERVILLE, N. J., May 29.—
The late John D. Dillon of Far Hills who was a New York lawyer and formerly judge of the supreme court in Iowa, in his will, filed for probate today, bequeathed a sum not to exceed $20,000 for the erection of a fountain in Davenport, Iowa, $10,- 000 to the Iowa State University, for law prize essays and scholarships, and sums of $1,000 each to the library in Davenport, to Iowa college,
Grinnell, Iowa, and Grinnell college,
Mount Vernon, Iowa.

RHEUMA IS FREE FROM NARCOTICS
Relieves Rheumatism by Cleansing
the Whole System of all Impurities.

Do not try to relieve rheumatism
by dosing the system with dangerous drugs. RHEUMA is free from all opiates and narcotics and cleans the system in a natural but scientific manner. The dangerous
"waste" is eradicated from the kidneys, bowels, liver and skin. RHEU-MA costs only 50 cents at druggists everywhere.

Blood Trouble Often A Puzzling Question

The Searching Power of a Great Remedy Answers
the Worst Riddle.

Thousands Have Solved It With S. S. S.

It is now known that the germs of blood disorders are found in the minute spaces of the tissue fibers. They can be seen only through a powerful microscope. And it is in these spaces that S. S. S. goes to work rapidly, effectively and with wonderful, noticeable results.

This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components vital and essential to healthy blood.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in promoting eczema, rash, pimples, all skin affections, rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, loss of weight, thin pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced by all sufferers with poisoned blood.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life.

S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 221 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice.

S. S. S. is sold everywhere by all drug stores. Beware of all attempts to sell you something "Just as good." Insist upon S. S. S.

We Keep Your Suit New!

The man who does not have his clothes dry cleaned and pressed frequently, does not get the full wear out of them.

Long before the clothes are worn out the lapels droop over, the coat front breaks, the sleeves wrinkle and pull out at the elbow, the trousers become baggy and lose their shape at the bottom, and the entire suit looks old and disreputable.

Our service keeps them clean and fresh, keeps them shaped right and fitting perfectly until they wear out. It's not only an aid to good dressing—but a real economy, as well.

Take advantage of it frequently.

CONSERVATORY NOTES.

The Conservatory orchestra, under Mr. Kritch's direction, will give its concert next Tuesday evening, June 2nd, at State Street church. The orchestra will be assisted by the Singing club, under Mr. French's direction and the women's portion of the Illinois College chorus. The proceeds of this concert will be given to the Jacksonville Free Kindergarten.

The Conservatory trio, Messrs. Kritch, Munger and Jensen, will play at the vesper service in State Street church on Sunday afternoon at 4:30. Mr. Kritch and Mr. Munger will also play solos.

The graduation recitals which took place Tuesday and Thursday evenings, May 26th and 28th, were most successful and well attended, notwithstanding the number of other entertainments given the same evenings. The candidates for teacher's certificate (8) and diploma (4) acquitted themselves in a manner creditable to their instructors and to their own ability.

A students' recital will be given in Recital hall next Thursday, June 4th, at 8 p. m. Several numbers for four hands, two pianos, will be included in the program, as well as vocal and violin solos. The public are invited.

A recital of students of Mrs. Bullard, Miss Jerauld, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Kritch was given Friday evening, May 29th.

Mrs. R. P. Joy entertained the class in musical appreciation at her home on West State street on Tuesday afternoon, May 19th.

An informal reception was held at Academy hall Thursday evening, after the graduation recital, the graduating students and their relatives, the Conservatory faculty, President and Mrs. Rammekamp and Mrs. Garrison being the guests. Light refreshments were served.

A students' recital will be given on Monday afternoon, June 1st, at four o'clock in Recital hall. The public are cordially invited.

PRESERVE YOUR TREES

BY ILLINOIS TREE EXPERT CO.

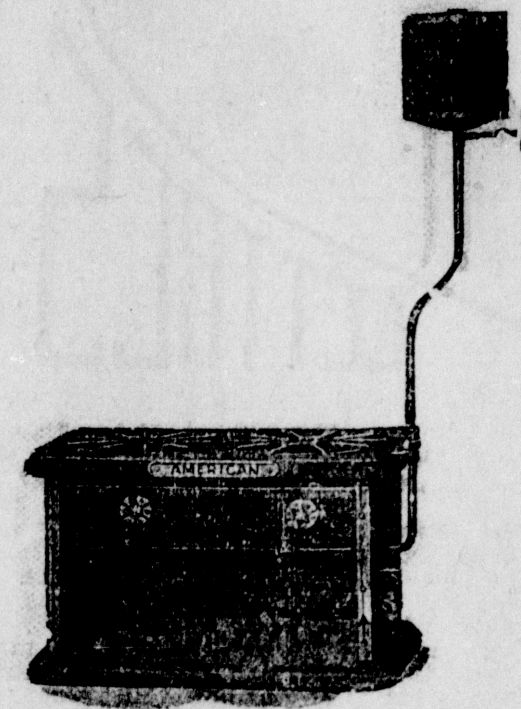

Do not neglect your trees. If your trees are in first class condition you want to know it. If not you ought to know it. Do not let amateurs experiment on your trees. It pays to employ trained and competent men who have the endorsement of all leading authorities on trees. You can have your trees examined and find out their exact condition without any obligation on your part by mailing a card to Mr. W. W. Larrar, 353 West Morgan St., or phone 50-198.

JUNE SALE!

You Can Reurnish or Replace at Rare Reductions Now

A business policy that always guards the customer's interest, lends weight to this plain, unvarnished announcement of our June Sale of Furniture and Home Furnishings. We do not think it necessary to enlarge upon the economies for judging by the public's confidence in our methods in sales of the past; the honesty of the savings is quite well understood.

Coming on the threshold of the "vacation season," the reductions are timely because they apply to most wanted things for the summer home. But the city home has been thought of too, as many of the examples listed on this page go to show.

The Ayers Safe Deposit Vault

A Safe Deposit Box is not a luxury, but a necessity to the owner of stocks, bonds, deeds, mortgages, insurance policies and other valuable papers.

Anxiety about jewelry and silveware not in use is dispelled when they are in a Safe Deposit Vault.

It may be of interest to know that in the construction of the vault there are more than 380,000 pounds of steel and the door itself weighs 14 tons.

To rent a Safe Deposit Box in this vault costs less than one cent a day.

Private rooms for the examination of papers are provided for the convenience of patrons.

to go to his father that he as people say 'got religion.' But when I read the story again not long ago I noticed that it was not miraculous revelation that he received. The prodigal simply came to himself as did John Henry when he arose and determined to return to his home, his wife and his children."

"Burdens of jurors are always onerous and men who administer law must bear civilized government. Each part of men or nation has burdens and one of the greatest is that of deciding interests of their fellowmen, the liberties and sometimes the lives of these countrymen. I do not presume to tell you men your duty in that regard. The right of trial by jury came with the passage of years. In England the star chamber used to administer justice, but in the progress of civilization have come the liberties of the people. One of the fundamental rights is the trial by jury. No matter what is the form of government, there must be penalties attached to crime. The divine being, who said at Mt. Sinai, 'Thou shalt not steal,' said also, 'Thou shalt not kill.'"

The Prodigal Son.
Trial by jury is a great safeguard of American liberty. I have heard men favor trial by judges only. This would be a calamity against justice. The fairest way is to give every man the right of trial before twelve men. Jurors are not superhuman and may make mistakes. Mr. Hairgrove said the prodigal son "came to himself" in a far country, but he had committed no crime. I take it from Holy writ that the case is not parallel, for the prodigal son quarreled over the division of worldly estate, went into a far country and there came to a realization of the folly of his way. He came to himself meant not that he was crazy, but that his sensibilities had been aroused. The divine government is liberal and protects the people, but mercy is always allied with justice; that is the divine law.

The Man of Galilee who took children in arms and blessed them, also took a scourge and drove the money changers from the temple. He who said to the woman, 'Go and sin no more' did not forgive murder. There would be no freedom to anybody, if every man does as he pleases. Men give up this right when they bind themselves into communities. Let justice have place in protecting the interests of all is a theory of all law. Mr. Wilson said substantially that the family of the defendant had suffered more than that of Chas. Ezard or would so suffer. I want you to remember the fatherless home of Charles Ezard.

E. E. Hairgrove drew upon his imagination and not upon the evidence when he stated that the community does not fear John Henry, or that Mrs. Ezard would have spoken well of the defendant on the stand.

The attorneys for the defense know that we could not place Mrs. Henry on the stand and prove any conduct that would have a bearing on the guilt of her husband.

W. N. Hairgrove said that if you found this man guilty and did not believe him so you would murder yourselves, but I have no fear that you will believe him innocent and still find him guilty.

The Preoccupied Mind.
You can corrupt the senate or a legislative body by certain pressure, but you cannot corrupt the people as a whole. I assume that the jury believes it has been fully proven that Charles Ezard was killed by John Henry. The defendant had one drink of whiskey in Woodson and said that he had one drink from a doctor friend. He had a drink of cider. After the station was reached he stepped upon the double tree of a wagon and intended to ride home when he was reminded that he had ridden a pony to the station.

Some years ago I left my cow in the barn for 24 hours and was out looking for her, having forgotten where she was. I have tied my horse while hitched to the carriage and have let the horse stand all night. But these lapses of memory were not considered an evidence of insanity. It is often true that a farmer leaves his bed room on a hot night to sleep in the yard or in a hay loft and this does not indicate weak mentality. I once had a fall which resulted in many sleepless nights. You can work on a theory and people will begin to discuss it and all takes sides in any community.

As to weighing of evidence and the credibility of testimony I ask you to compare how meekly and frankly the daughter of Mrs. Ezard and the daughter of John Henry testified. We put on a witness, a Mr. Megginson, and you can judge him by the way he answered his questions. He answered reluctantly and hesitatingly because he feared to injure the cause for his kinsman. All witnesses were fairly treated except one man who was questioned by Mr. Hairgrove of Missouri as to the matter of smelling liquor on the breath of the defendant. You saw how John Henry answered questions how he hesitated and how he weighed what he said. Take that into consideration.

Facts at Henry Home Sealed.
We had no means of knowing what happened at the Henry home. To get at those facts we would have had to put the children on the stand to testify against the father and we did not wish to ruthlessly cross the threshold of this home, for we believed we could get sufficient facts to you without so doing. You have a right to draw reasonable and proper inferences from the facts proven. That night John Henry sat in a chair, his head was in his hands. He stood up and started to close the door and we see nothing to close the door until he goes to his home, secures more shells and then disappears. How Mrs. Henry reached the home we do not know. Whether there was a difficulty prior to that is a sealed story. That night John Henry asked Mrs. Ezard after the killing of Mr. Ezard, 'Where is Lou?' and I believed he could reason and knew he had committed an unlawful act. When Henry went to St. Louis he sought a secluded place in a cheap lodging house instead of going to a good hotel. Was this not consistent with the man who reasoned at Woodson that he had committed a crime and must escape?

The Return of Mentality.
"I submit that after the defendant claimed to have a return of mentality that he still acted in the consistent automatic way. This was manifested by the way he went to Venice and returned home. Dr. Norbury testified to the automatic consistent action of the defendant while in the alleged state of insanity. Under the laws of descent what possible connection could be between the aunt who died from insanity following a fever incident to child birth. Then there was Mr. Ferguson, an uncle of the deceased. The facts show that the man in question was simply of weak mind and that he was never committed to an asylum. My observation is that in homicidal cases when there is no defense that as a last resort there comes the plea of temporary insanity.

Then when John Henry gets to jail he has two experts to care for him and they are competent and able men. They testify as to his mental condition and say that he was insane when the crime was committed. Four months have elapsed since John Henry was placed in jail. Would it not be reasonable to suppose that he would have shown some signs of insanity during the long period of confinement, dwelling as he must upon the crimes charged against him. Yet we hear of none. In a family as large as that of the Henrys it is a wonder that more cases of insanity could not be shown. Remember that John Henry returned to Woodson after the crime in the same way that he went and this incident may be termed one of those little facts which are in most cases and which are of great importance.

"Now as to the witness who came from St. Louis. How could this man identify John Henry. He maintained that he had seen him only indifferently at the St. Louis rooming house. That the man gave his name as Brown and yet four months later he comes into this court and swears John Henry was the man.

The defendant is one of a large family and has the support of all of this family and that is right. He had three lawyers in the prime of life and all the safe guards that the law contemplates and this is right. Judge Layman then read a decision of the supreme court in a homicide case from Vandavia, in which certain rules were laid down as to the question of the pleas of sanity. He maintained that the case in many ways was parallel to the Woodson homicide.

As To Expert Testimony.
Like other lawyers who have practiced law long I do not attach much weight to expert testimony. We put on experts to meet them. Both hypothetical questions had enough cardinal features in them to make both proper. Neither question had all of the facts therein. Their question did not include many things in the testimony and neither did ours. I believe that one question offsets the other and that both may be disregarded and still be fair to the defendant.

Why did not you learned lawyer tell all the law in defining a crime.

MORTUARY

Cheney.
John C. Pyatt of 329 West North street received word Saturday afternoon of the death of his brother-in-law, Edgar S. Cheney, who passed away at his home in Petersburg after an illness of several months. The end came unexpectedly however, as his condition was not considered to be immediately serious. Miss Edie Pyatt left in the evening for her uncle's bedside in Petersburg.
Besides his wife, Mrs. Margaret brother, Dr. William J. Cheney of Petersburg and his mother, Mrs. Sarah J. Cheney of Chicago. The surviving children are Herbert H. James and Miss Caroline Cheney. His only sister, Mrs. Pyatt, passed away some few years ago.
Mr. Cheney was 58 years old and was a man of high standing in his community. He was born and reared in Menard county and was a member of the Presbyterian church. He was engaged in the lumber business.
Arrangements for the funeral have not been announced.

AMERICAN WOVEN WIRE FENCE—THE KIND YOU WANT.

We cannot say too much about the quality of American Fence. It is built of large, steel wires, especially adapted to withstand the wear and tear a fence is subjected to. While it is easy to erect, it is stiff and springy. The hinge joint principle makes it yield to sudden pressure and again return to the original shape. The galvanizing is the most perfect known, making it proof against weather conditions.

The American Fence is made by the American Steel & Wire Co., who have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to make a fence for you that will be satisfactory in every way. Test it, compare it, both as to quality and weight per rod, with other fences and then you will join the hundreds of other American Fence users in Morgan county.

"A Good Place To Trade"

This man is charged with crime. A crime is a violation of a public law in which there must be a union of action and intention, or a criminal negligence.

Suppose that when I went to the street and fired off a gun, just for fun and some one should be killed there would be criminal neglect and I could be convicted and hung. A man is responsible for the natural and probable consequence of his own act unless he is proven insane. If a man shot into the jury box and one of you were killed the man would be responsible even if there was no intention on his part to do any special one of you harm. A man not to be responsible must be driven by an irresistible impulse which he cannot control.

Do you believe that John Henry followed an uncontrollable impulse when he went to Charles Ezard's house and shot him.

Give John Henry the presumption of innocence, with the record of a good past; give his family all the mercy there is under the law but also give to society the protection it desires.

Jurors have sympathy and judges have sympathy but jurors usually decide cases according to the laws. Do not take anything from John Henry that he is entitled to but I also ask you to give this community the due consideration.

This defendant has all the protection that the law affords him. But I want you to remember too that the scene where a man pushed open door and the father and husband in the Ezard household was slain. A few words more and you will pass upon the life and liberty of the defendant. Think of him and of the widow and the child in arms which will have no recollection of a father. The people are entitled protection of the majesty of the law. If you find the defendant guilty he has the right to appeal for a new trial or can seek a pardon. If you declare him not guilty that ends the whole matter. We leave in your hands the destiny of this man's life and also the peace and good order of the community.

Thermos bottles are just the thing for a picnic. Keeps liquids either hot or cold.
